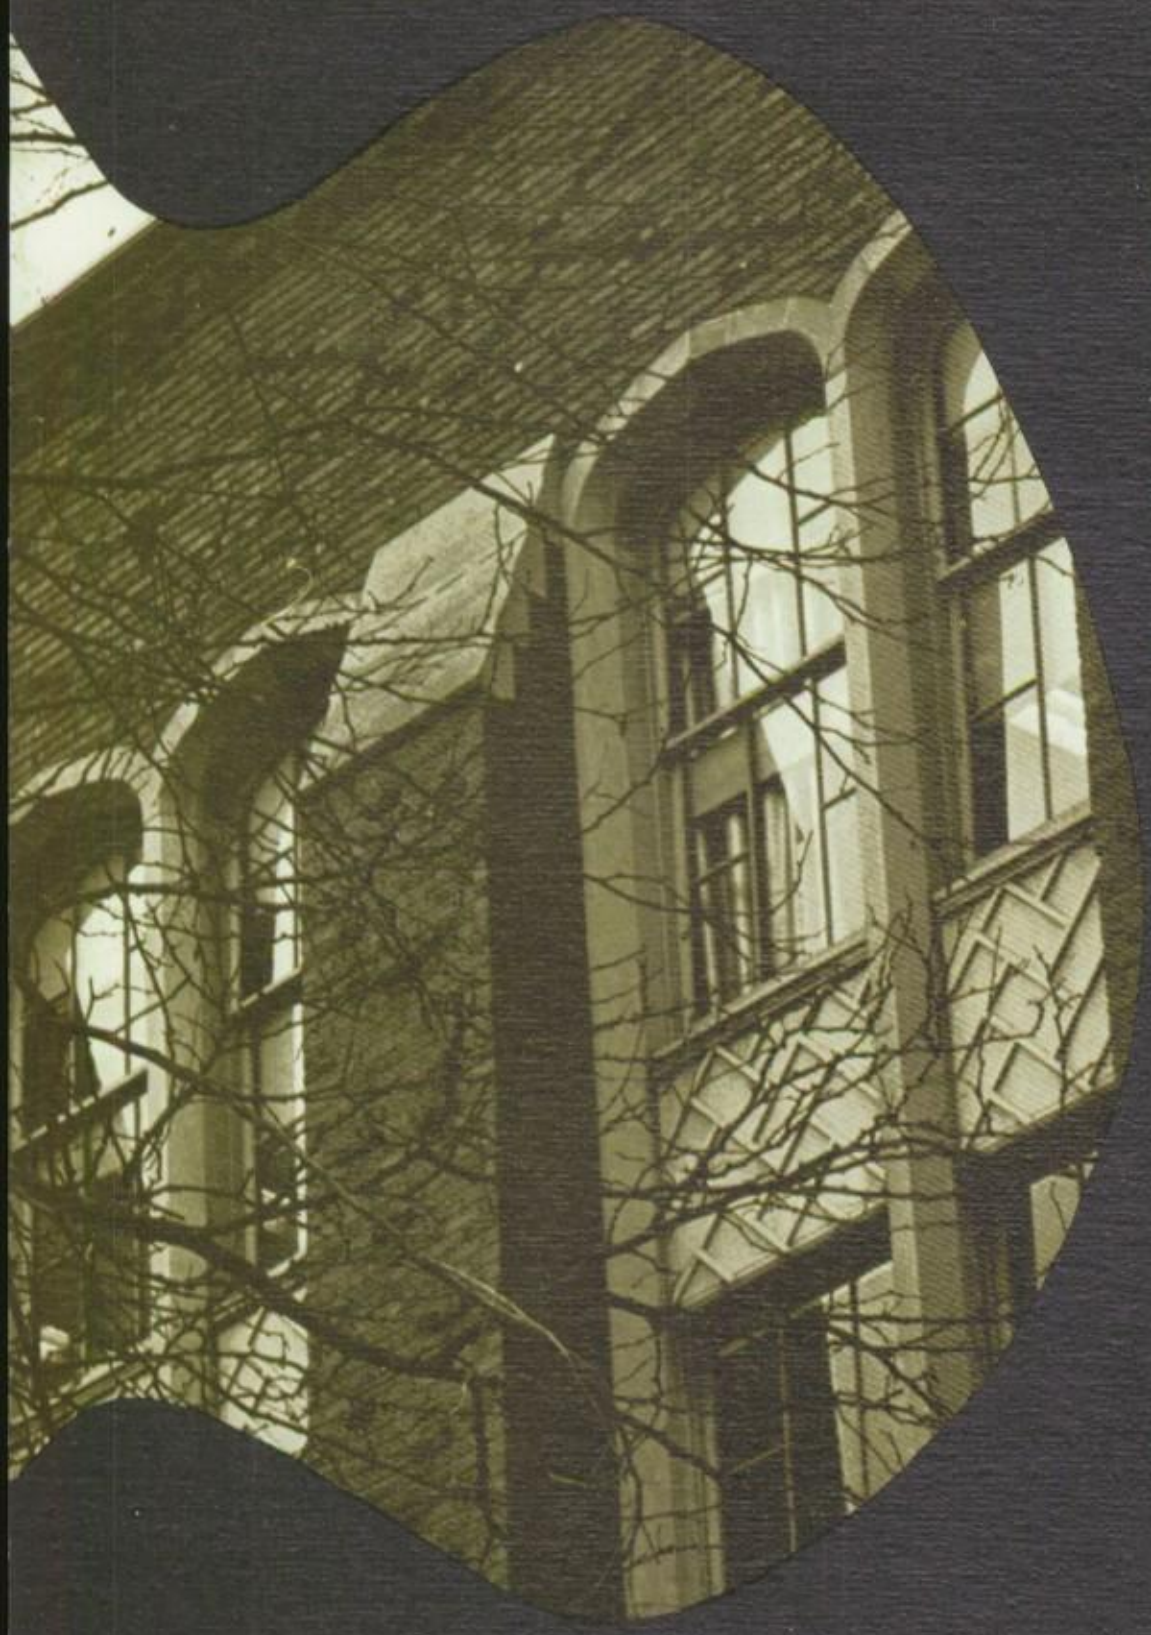
CENTRAL CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL

PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA 15213



Education in general, and high school education in particular, is usually evaluated in terms of its value for the future. Our parents urge us to put forth our best efforts in school so that we can get into college and ultimately achieve financial security. Guidance counselors advise us to take certain courses so we will be prepared for the challenge of higher education. We are told that a good performance in high school is the best guarantee of a productive future. Because of this emphasis on the future, high school yearbooks have traditionally filled their introductory pages with philosophical remarks which expound on the future usefulness of our high school experiences. These philosophical tracts can easily deteriorate into ridiculous analogies between high school athletic contest and the more severe "contests" of the 'cold outside world" which we face after graduation. Few students, however, would agree that this idea of preparing for the future is their motivation for playing sports or participating in activities. Athletes are more often out for glory or enjoyment rather than preparation. Learning basic physics certainly prepares us for study on higher levels of science. But what is more important? Is it this preparation or the satisfaction and even joy which results from investigating something which previously we knew nothing about?

It would seem then, that our high school years have a present value which is perhaps more significant than their future value. Some elements of this present value might be intellectual stimulation and the satisfaction of accomplishment. By overemphasizing the future we may be losing sight of the intrinsic value of the present.

With the 1970 Towers we hope to furnish the reader with a record of the activities of a group of young men. Young men preparing for the future but more importantly living the present to its fullest potential. Indeed, it is perhaps this enjoyment of the present which best prepares us to enjoy the future.

By overemphasizing
the future, we lose sight of the intrinsic value of the present.

Living the present
to its fullest potential is...

more valuable
for the future.

The first paragraph in the text of Central Catholic's philosophy states that the school's primary purpose of education is ". . . the development and traning of the mind . . .". This heavily trod upon maxim, once thoughtfully considered, seems obviously fundamental. Along with being essential, it is also open to numerous modes of application. Unfortunately, the tendency of our educational environment is toward the common mode, that of directing its student's minds to facts themselves rather than the beauty of those facts.

Brother Fred deGroot, a member of the faculty here at Central for eight years, has not only directed his students' minds toward beauty, he has done so in a unique and refreshing style that is forcefully compelling.

The young men he has come in contact with, whether through the classroom or as a coach of track and cross-country, have found him unequaled in both because of his effective mental approach. As an Art and Religion instructor, and as a coach, Brother Fred has displayed a dedicated desire to fulfill both his and Central's primary purpose of education.

To this great man, and to his strongly motivated ideals and convictions, toward both mind and body, this yearbook is dedicated.

Mike Kiefer

Strain every fiber of your being,
Not that victory be won or another foe falls,
But that the course you chose
Be done with noble effort
And a soldier's heroism.
The demand is a challenge,
The prospect The premium
Is a greatness,
A greatness beyond our greatest expectations
What man can do
You have done, and
Better than any man before you.
The man you made is the man inside you.
Humble, quiet, strong, refined,
And like a King.
Every fiber of your being.

Brother Fred deGroot

DEDICATION

ADMINISTRATION

During 1969-70 Central Catholic made great progress toward becoming a fully modern high school. Through a series of changes made by the administration, with the help of students, faculty, and alumni, the school added new facilities and seemingly a new attitude. The first big change was the placement of a layman, Mr. John Maurer, in the position of Assistant Principal. This made for better student-faculty and faculty-administration relations and also made work easier for Brother Rene and Brother Anthony.

Following this action more concrete improvements began to happen: a paved parking lot, study centers in the Auditorium Balcony and History and English Resource Centers, separate offices for all of the departments, and plans for sodding the field and adding new outdoor basketball courts. In addition to these physical changes there were also changes in the curriculum and the schedule. Seniors were offered many more electives such as Latin American History and Urban Problems and they were also dismissed earlier. The other classes were given a built-in study period during the day.

All of these changes reflect a new attitude on the part of the administration. They are not willing merely to keep Central at its already high level. They want to make it even better.

FACULTY FOLLIES

"For your fine efforts you win this beautiful solid gold Mongolian spitoon."

"Don't bother me when I'm thinking."

"That's pretty funny. Just wait until I write your recommendation."

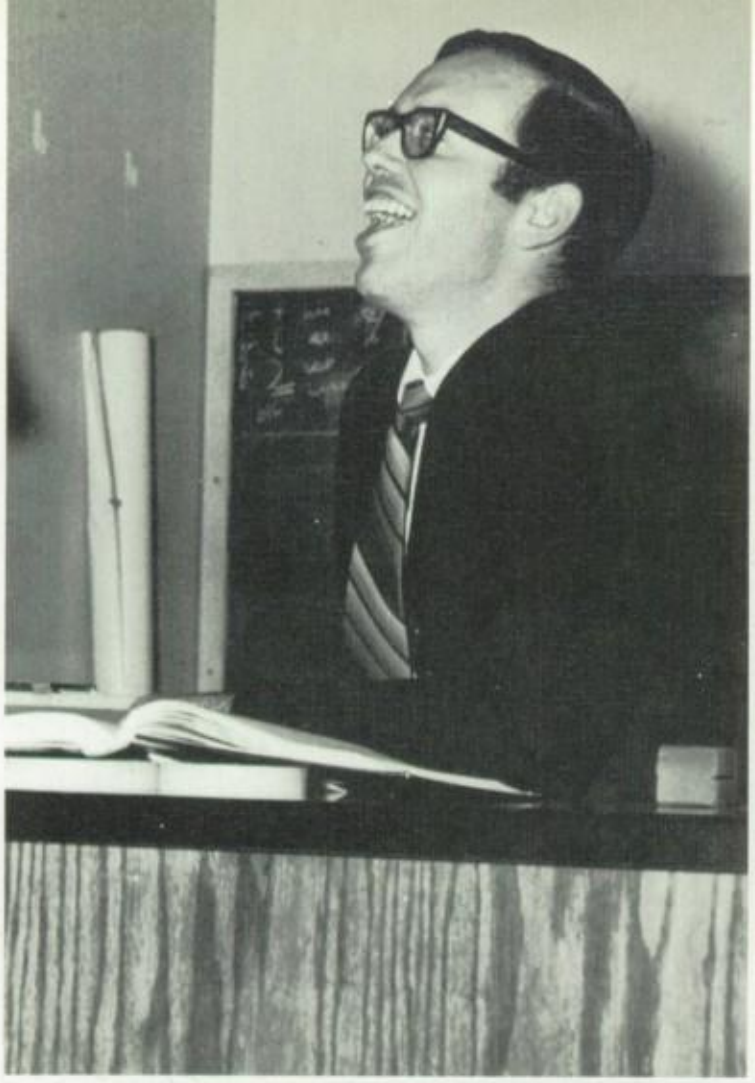
"Did you ever try any of the stuff?"

Komrade Kammer peruses the government's file on Che Guivera.

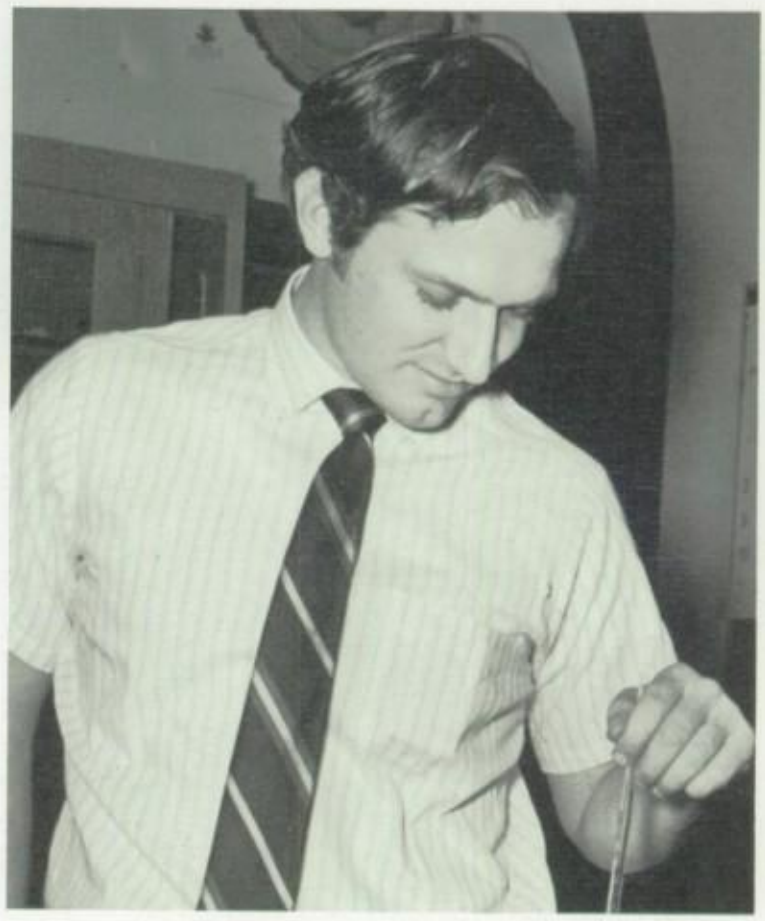
"Hey, listen I don't go in for fisticuffs."

"You get that Dutch touch with Uncle Joe."

The gateway to eternal damnation.

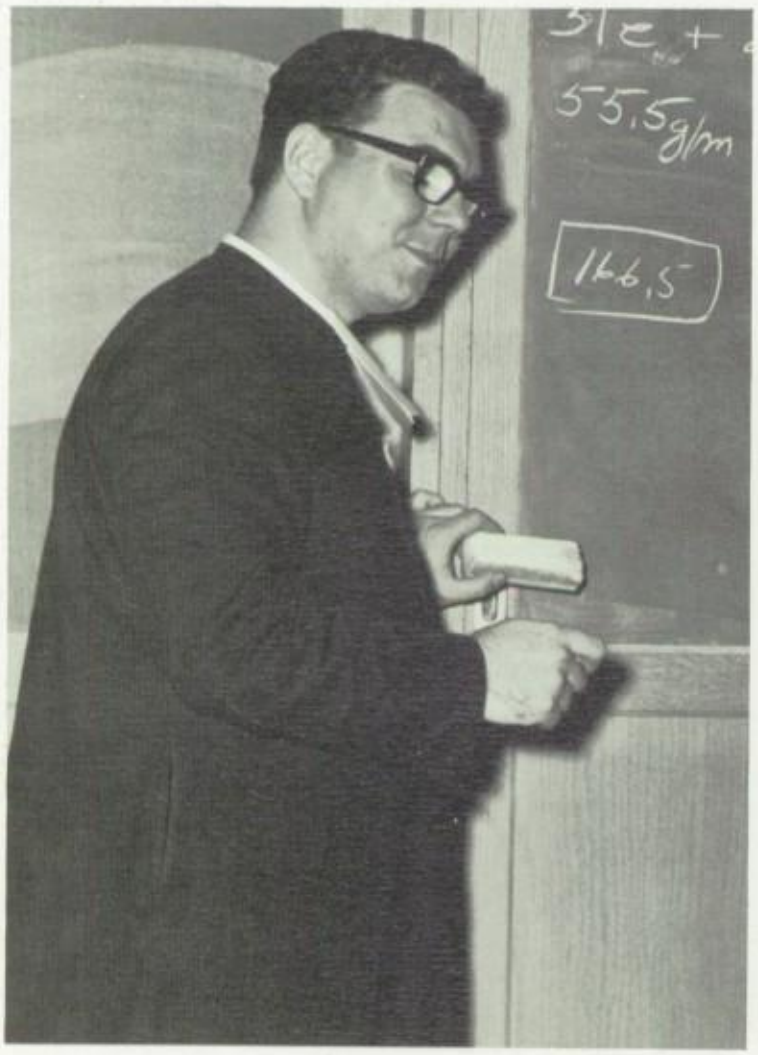


Brother Thomas erupts in uncontrolled laughter over a foolish senior's ridiculous story about a Sioux Indian chief named Sohcahtoa.



Brother Joseph leads his class in the famous fetal hippo dissection.

"No, Jeeves, that's not how much I weigh. It's my I. Q."



"As you probably know, today is halloween . . ."

UNDERCLASSES

It is commonly thought that yearbooks are published solely for the seniors. It is true of course that since the seniors are leaving they do receive the most attention, but no yearbook could attempt to capture the spirit of a school without giving some coverage to the underclassmen. At Central there are thirteen hundred and twenty students and nearly one thousand of them are underclassmen. These non-seniors participate in a major way in the activities of the school. They play on its athletic teams and they work for and sometimes lead its clubs and organizations. They give the school a flavor it would not have in their absence. All of them, the insecure, wandering freshmen, the cocky sophomores, and the self-assured, sometimes rebellious juniors help make Central what it is. On the following pages they are pictured with their individual homeroom sections.

FRESHMEN 1A

T. Mazza, T. McDermott, D. McDermott read about the legend of Sohcahtoa, a famous Sioux trigonometrician. Or is it a famous Trigo sioux-metrician?

ART

Art transmits an abstract form, a geometric shape, a shock of brilliant color illuminating a canvas . . . Art at Central Catholic has many expressions. It is the aesthetic and the intellectual blend in every artist to create something which he hopes will inspire a separate dimension to everyone who sees it.

The next few pages represents just a fraction of the emotions and inspirations recreated at one particular moment. We would like to thank the artists and their sponsors for allowing us to share with them the feelings and emotions involved in the development of each drawing.

ACTIVITIES

When alumni of Central Catholic are questioned about their high school experiences their first response usually concerns some aspect of athletics. Athletics by their very nature attract the most attention, but the activities at Central, clubs, organizations, societies, contribute equally to the character of the school. Activities fall into a myriad of categories, social, entertainment, literary, and athletic, to name a few, and at Central all of the categories are filled. Any student who has the desire has the chance to develop any talent that he feels he possesses. Activities do more than develop talent, however, they help make the school into a community. Not a week goes by without some activity announcing a new undertaking, whether it be a dramatic production, a concert, a national forensic tournament, or just a dance. Activities make Central a living, growing community, a service which benefits all of its members.

STUDENT COUNCIL

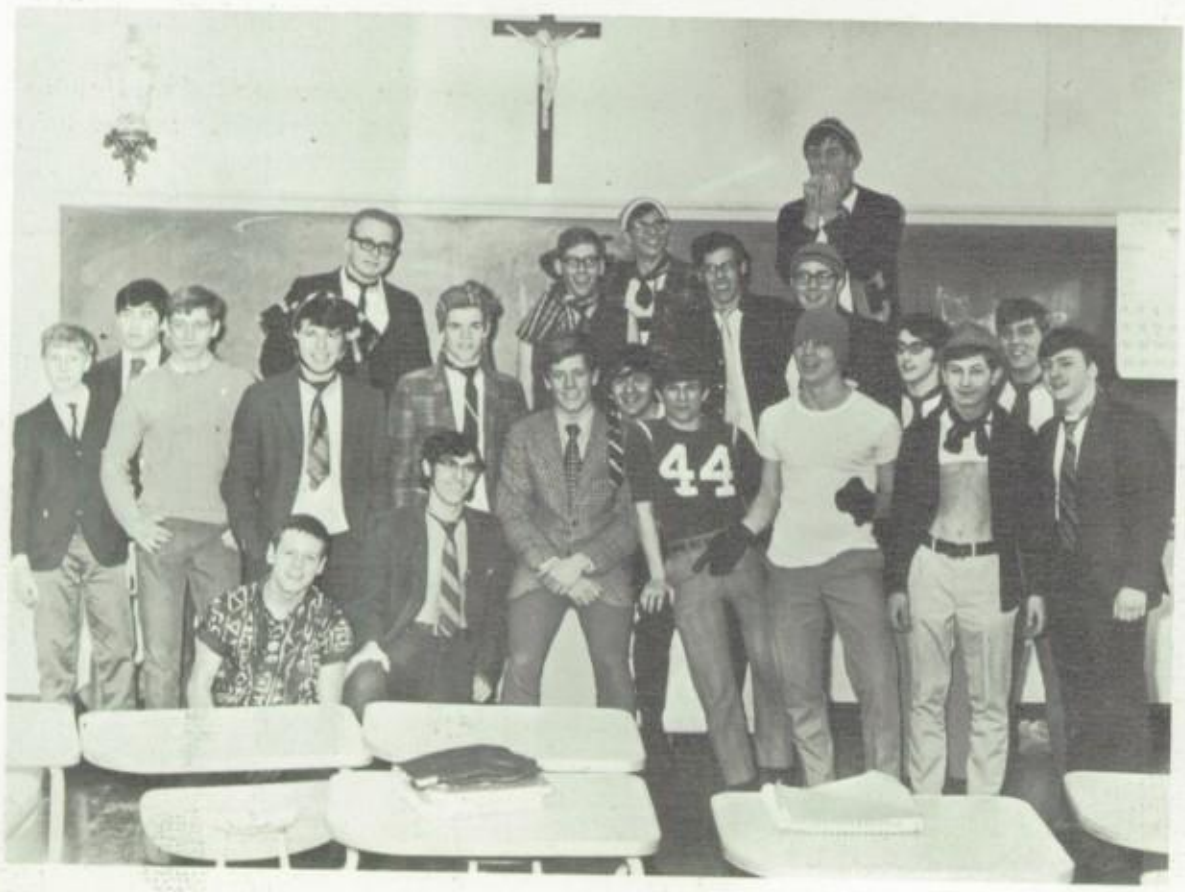
The Treasurer bows to executive authority.

Council moderator Brother John Hall shows off his private parking place. First priority for the council: a new car.

In their usual business-like manner, three members of the council ponder their eviction notice.



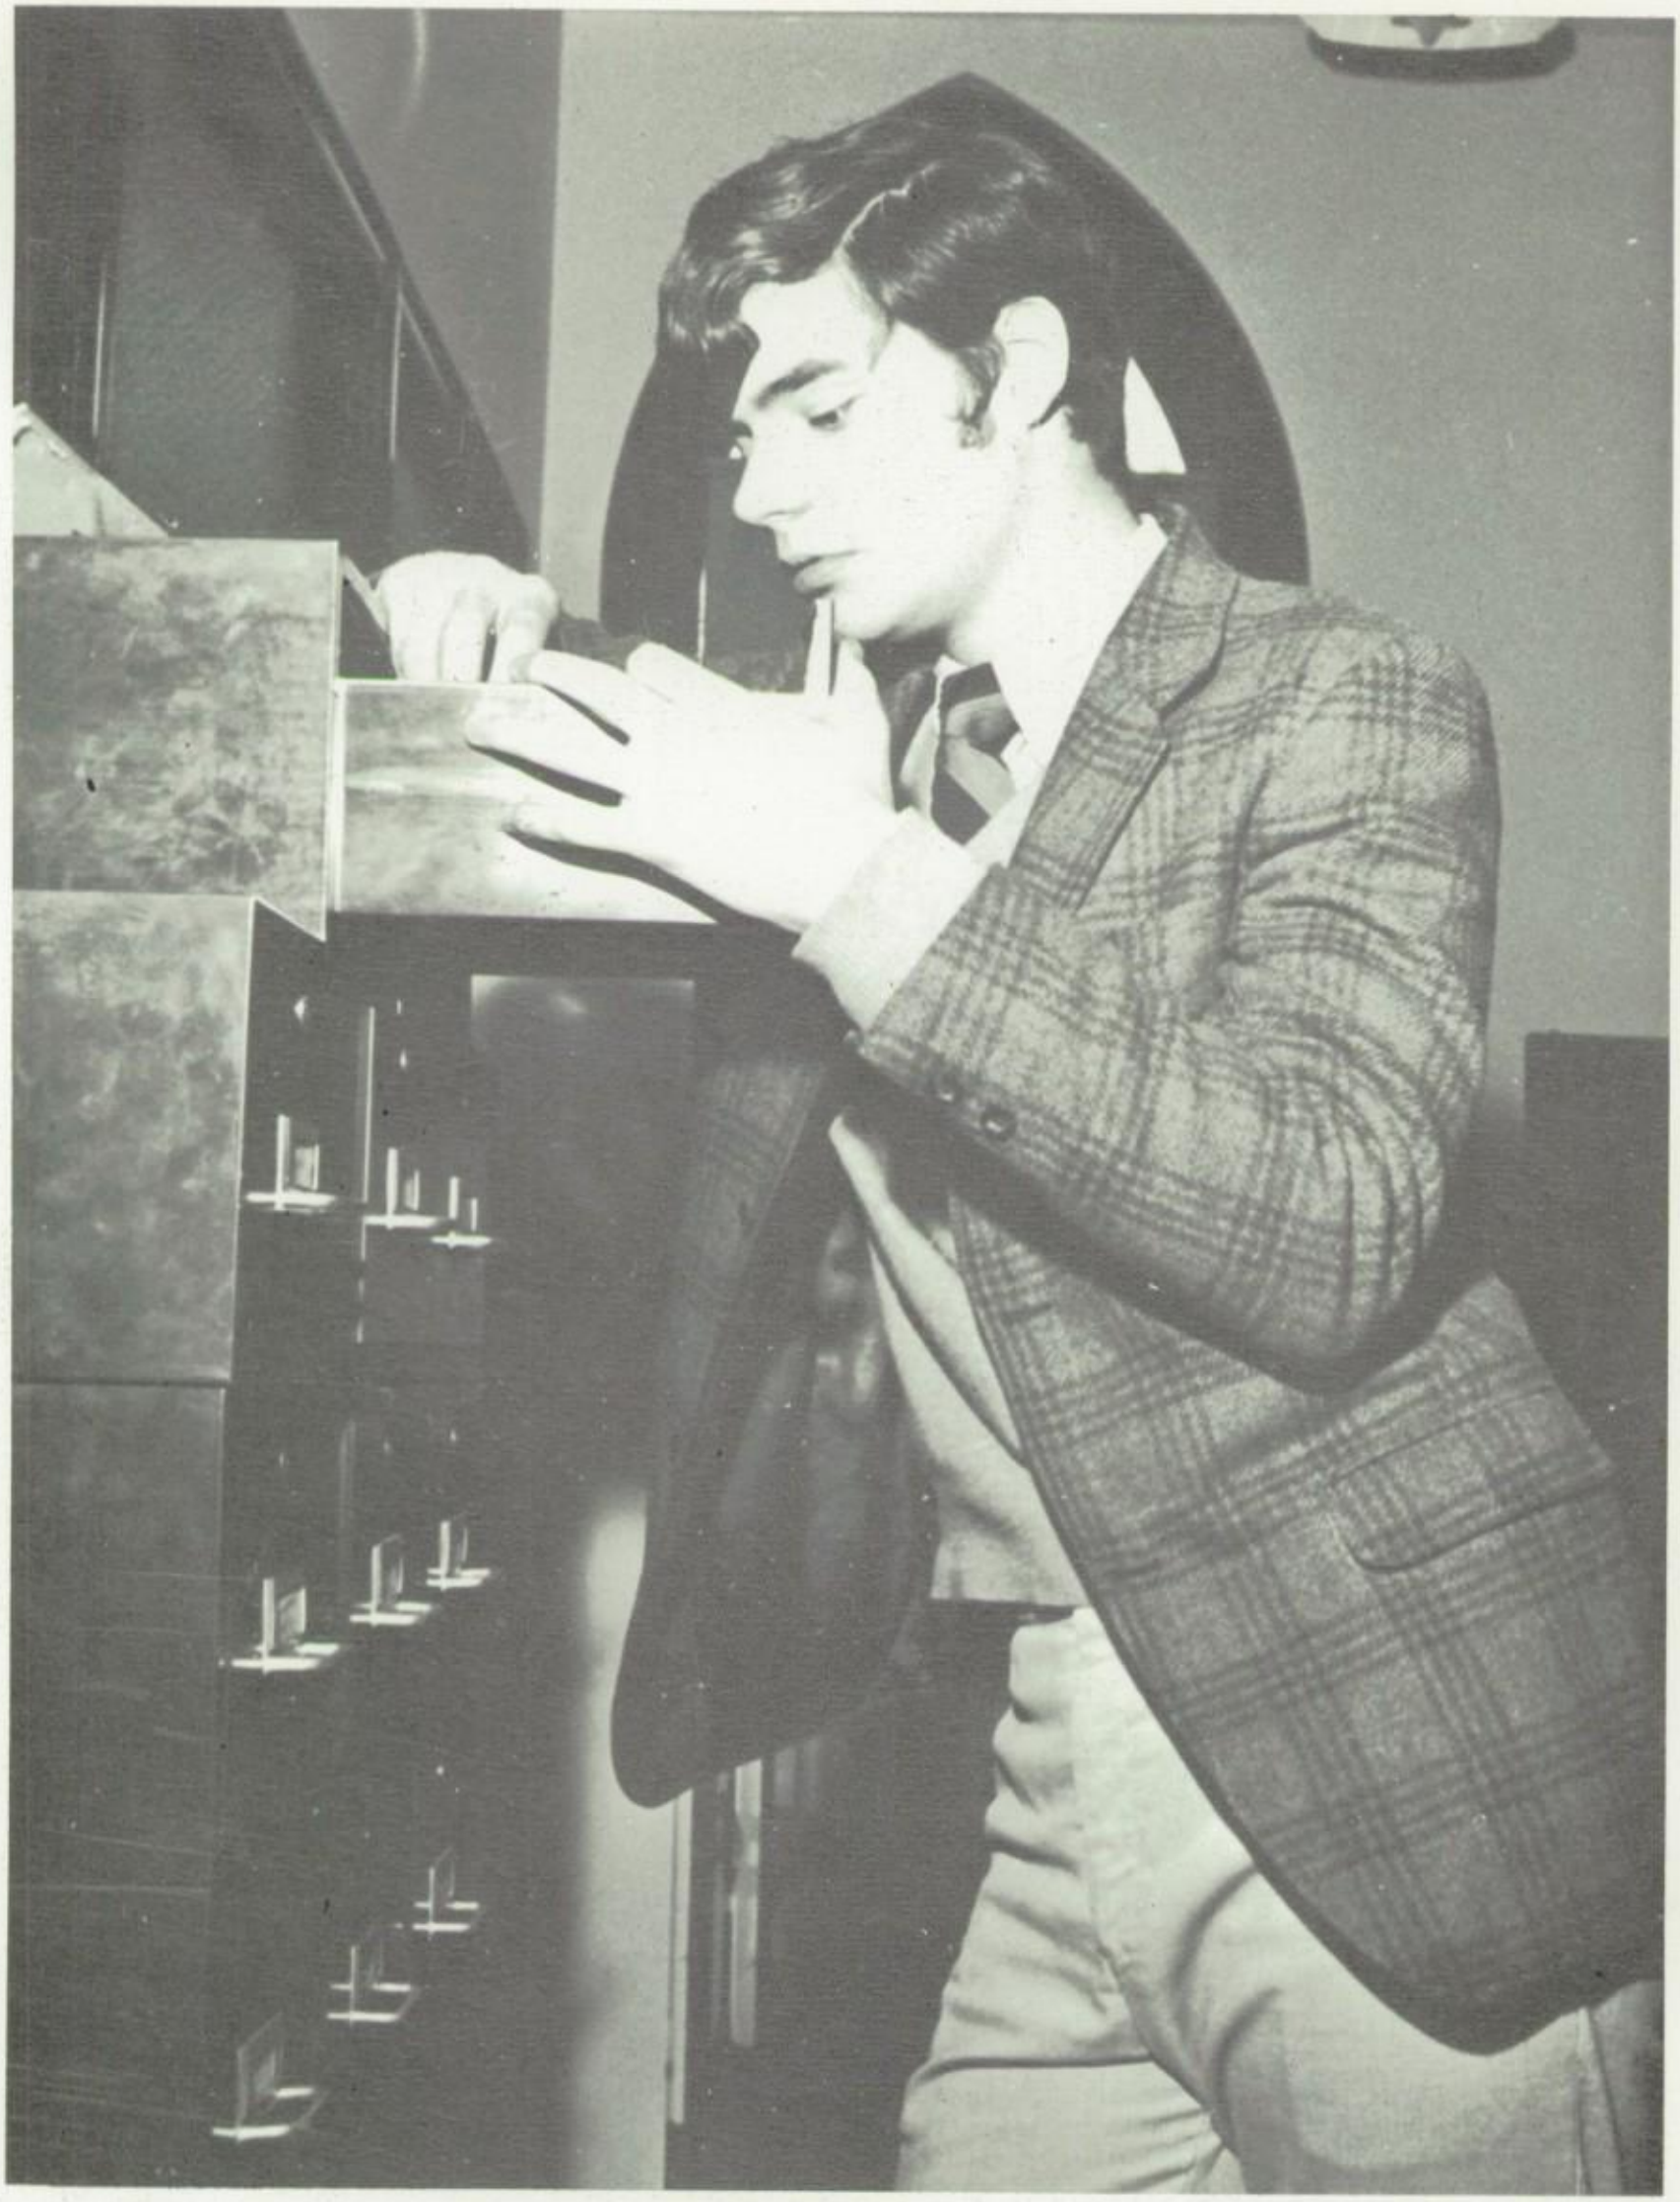
The Spirit Committee. FRONT ROW: J. DeMartini, chairman, J. Capone, M. Conn, J. Boscia, T. Coscarelli, J. Totten, T. Kolos, T. Gallagher; MIDDLE ROW: D. Ealing, K. Neal, M. M. Sherry, T. Capone, J. Johns, L. Benedict, R. Green; BACK ROW: D. Dawson, B. Bernacki, I. O'Hara.

The officers of the Central Catholic Forensics Society: Treasurer Michael Blair, Vice-President Joseph Merola, Secretary Anthony Crisafio, President Ralph Sciullo, Novice Master William Castner, Debate Coach Mr. Richard Rinaldo, Director Mr. Eugene Kail, and Recording Secretary Fred Egler.

FORENSICS

President Sciullo and two colleagues Jim Burns, and Tom Klemm, admire the first place trophy from the annual Juan Valdez Memorial Tournament.

Just a few of the practical, utilitarian trophies offered at the Central Catholic Sweepstakes.



Varsity debater William Castner searches through the file boxes for some evidence on this year's topic: Unilateral Military Intervention by the United States.

One way to win is to look clean-cut and well groomed, but this particular speaker seems to have taken the new short hair regulation a little too seriously.

The judges seem unimpressed with Ed Yurcon's use of J. Edgar Hoover as a modern follower of the golden rule.

Brother René poses with the 10 finalists in the "Ultra-bright Sex Appeal" contest.

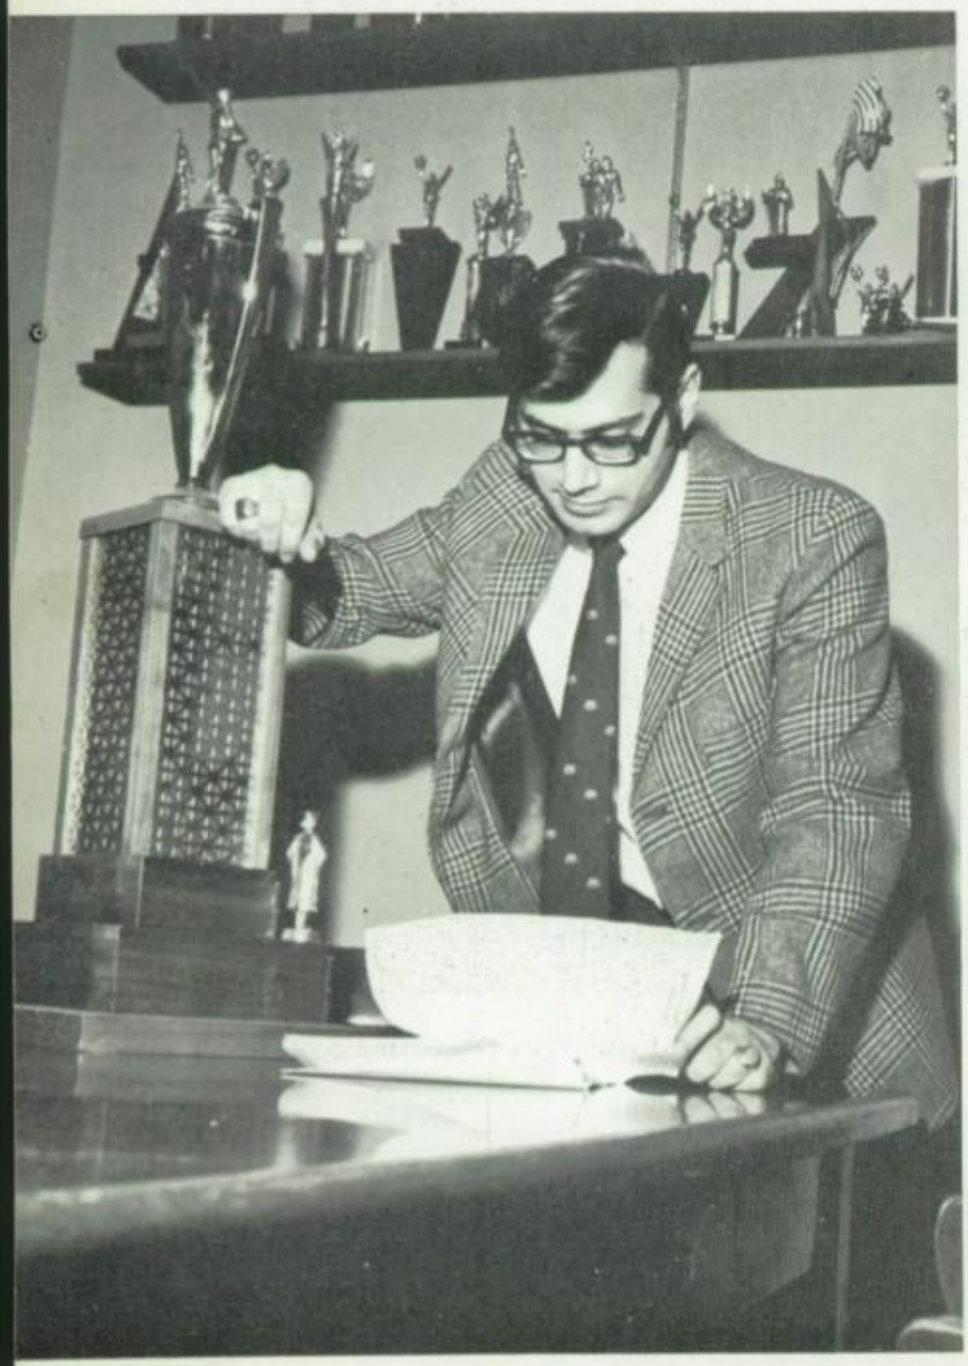
"So Richard Nixon said President Thieu is one of the five best statesmen in the world. I wonder how he rates himself?"

The freshman debators pose for a modern version of the Dutch Masters.

"Mr. Crisafio, it seems highly irregular for you to be using Mad Magazine as source material."

"Just remember, you guys, when he calls we'll be the number one team in the country."

Mr. Kail reads through the schedule while leaning on one of the many simplistic cigarette cases in the forensics office.



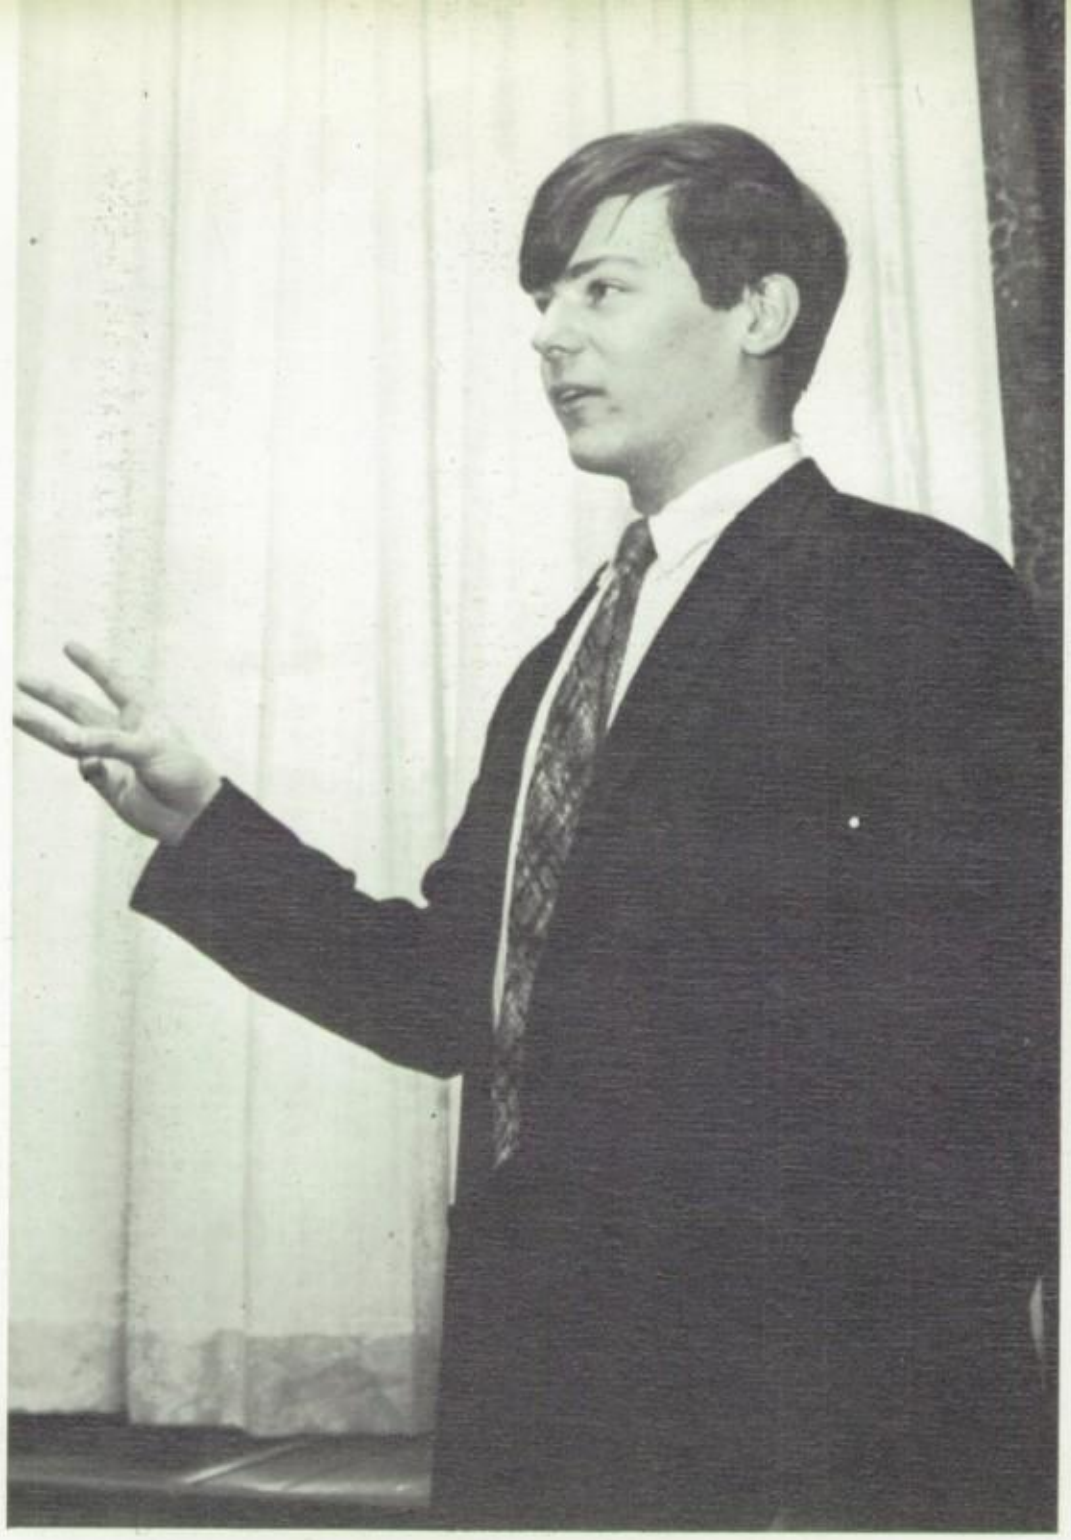
Bill Barker explains the advantages of his new 007 brief case.

Brother Rene congratulates Carmen Didiano for his efforts in the Sweepstakes.

Last year's state debate champions Joe Merola and Bill Castner work toward retaining the title with Coach Rinaldo.

Larry Ranallo escapes with his loot from the Sweepstakes tournament.

The Society motto always at their side, some debaters work on a case.



Four-year veteran Steve Daley displays the form of an experienced speaker.

Brother Rene arrives just a second too late, and his trophy goes to Ralph Sciullo.

The Desperate Hours

Director LeHane sends Ralphie to his room.

For its fall production the Masque presented a melodrama, "The Desperate Hours," by Joseph Hayes. The plot is built around the tense situation which develops when Glenn Griffin, an infamous convict, breaks jail and takes up residence in the home of Dan Hilliard, a typical middle class American. During the course of the play the author indirectly poses the question of who is really the evil party, Griffin, Hilliard, or Bard, the policeman who kills Griffin because of a personal dispute. The play, which was written in 1958 was updated with music by The Rolling Stones, Blind Faith and other rock groups.

"How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying" was the announced spring production.

The local police, Winston, Bard, and Fredericks, hear of Griffin's arrival in town, but not soon enough to save Hilliard from a beating administered by Griffiin and Robish (above).

Bard discusses the problem with F.B.I. agent Harry Carson.

Griffin chastises Robish for drinking on the job.

"You want somethin', take it!" Glenn explains the criminal's code to his younger brother.

Hilliard sits worried and confused as Ellie tries to comfort him.

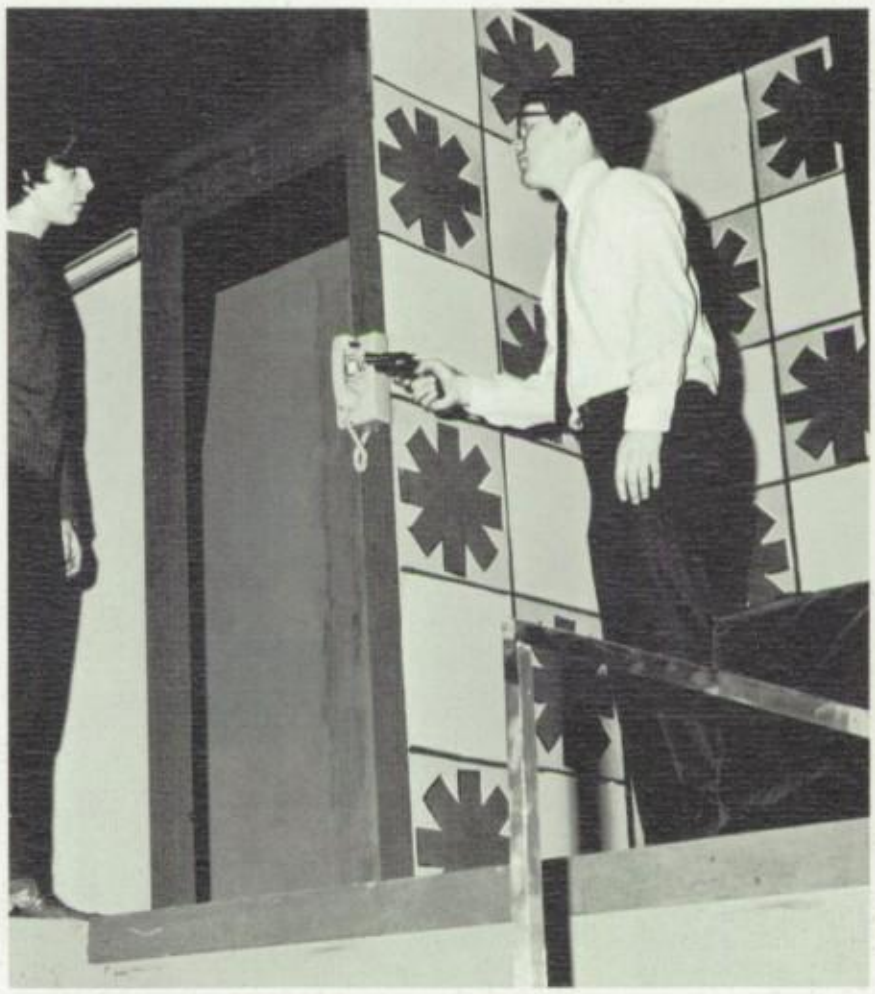
Cindy plays it cool to dissuade Chuck from staying.

Several visitors disturb the rest of the criminals. Below is Mr. Patterson, the obviously well-to-do garbage man.

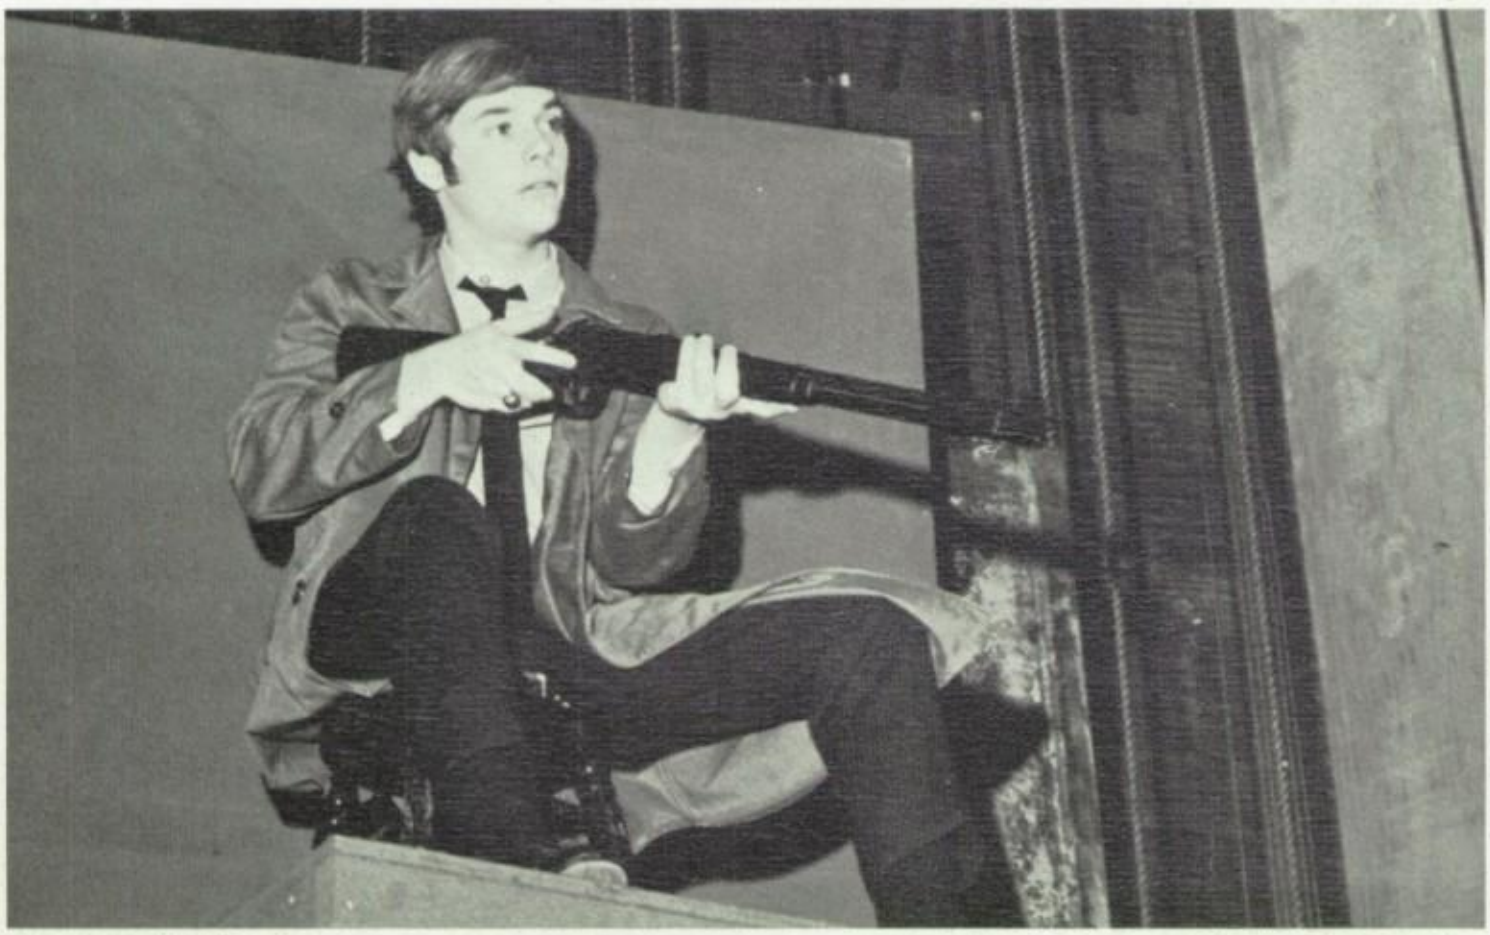
Ralph's teacher, Miss Swift, shows up to collect his composition.

Griffin warns Hilliard not to come between him and his brother (above). Hilliard succeeds, however in getting to Hank, and despite Glenn's attempt to make him stay (below) Hank forces his way out and his trail leads the police (below left) to his brother and Robish.

Glenn attempts to use Ralph as a hostage, not realizing he has an unloaded gun.



Hilliard pulls a gun on Griffin and forces him out the front door where Bard (below) gets his revenge.



BAND

The senior members of the band, BACK ROW: C. Perego, J. Lombardo, L. Manz, P. Morelli, T. Longo, K. Madden.

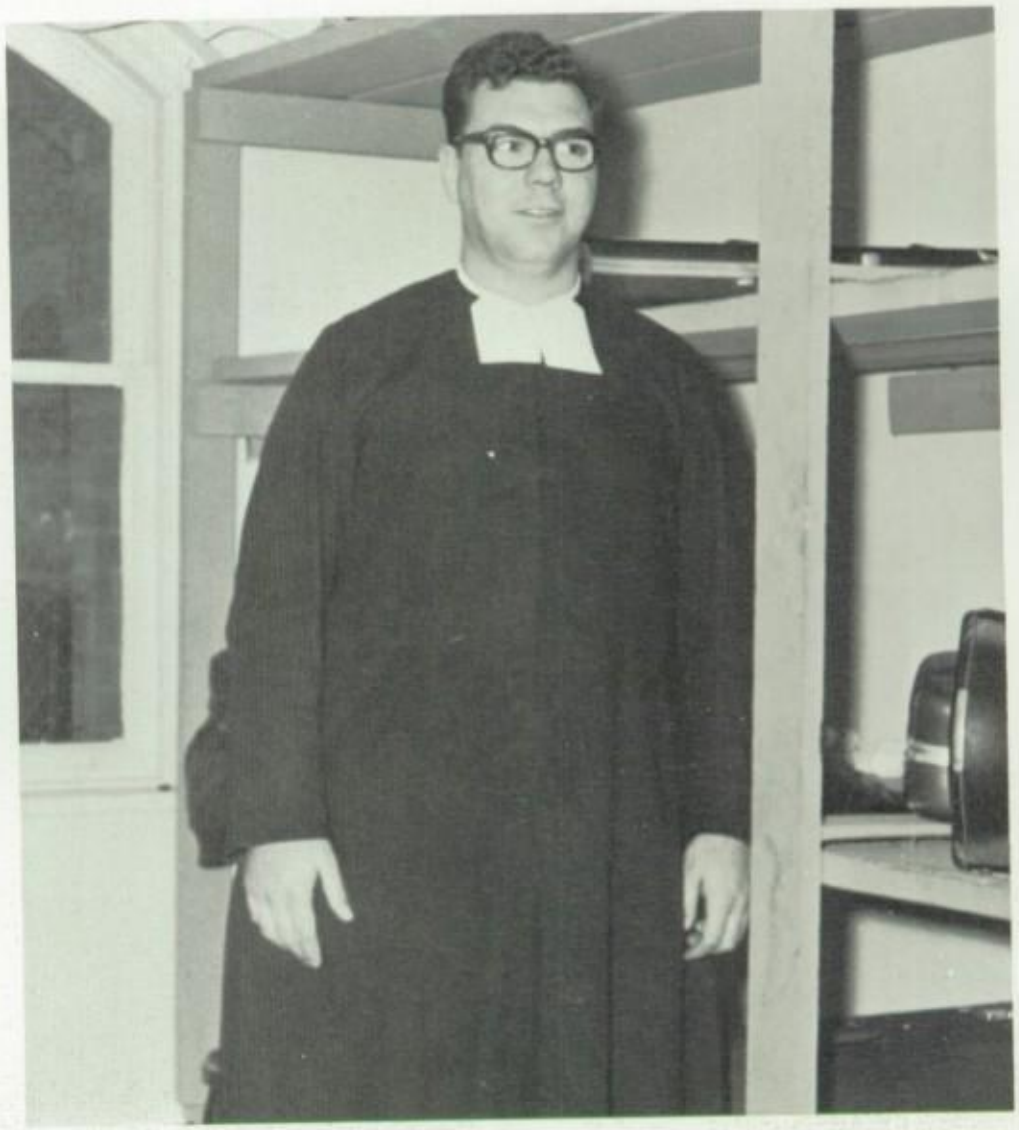
The prefects volunteer army of corridor patrollers pose in their new uniforms.

The saxophone section pauses before a week-end workout.

The lower brass section: J. Muldowney, T. Beals, D. Secola, M. Czerniewski, M. O'Conner.

They said it couldn't be done. Preparing for takeoff is drum major Jim Scheuermann.

"You can't trust those yearbook kids." Brother James Muffley, the band's moderator, keeps a vigilant watch in the instrument room.



The Percussion Section: M. Pollock, D. Shuster, J. Casciato, R. DeAngelo, S. Rieker, J. Watson, R. Caliguiri, K. Madden.

This year the band's patterns always seemed to move from right to left. Evidence of the new liberal trend is this demonstration at one of the games.

The band prepares to take the field for its annual reenactment of the Civil War.

When the public address system breaks down these guys perform a valuable service. Beating out the notices are D. Shuster, K. Madden, M. Pollock, and R. Scullion.

David Pruszynski knocks 'em dead at the annual Christmas show.

Dr. Joseph Rauterkus pauses next to his new gramophone.

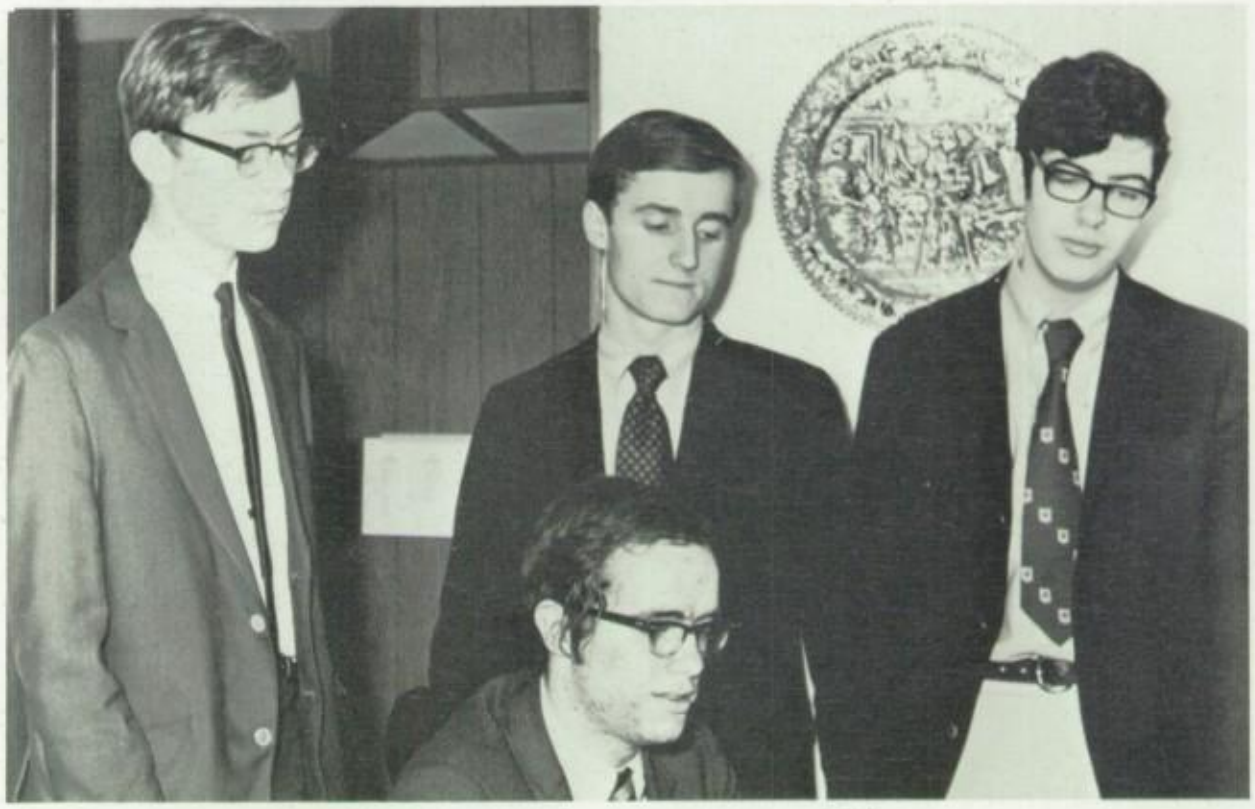
J. Lombardo performs his solo in "Chattanooga Choo Choo" as Pat Metcalfe attempts to eat his clarinet.

Five members of the orchestra string along with Doc Rauterkus.

Will the real Herb Alpert please stand up?

VIKING

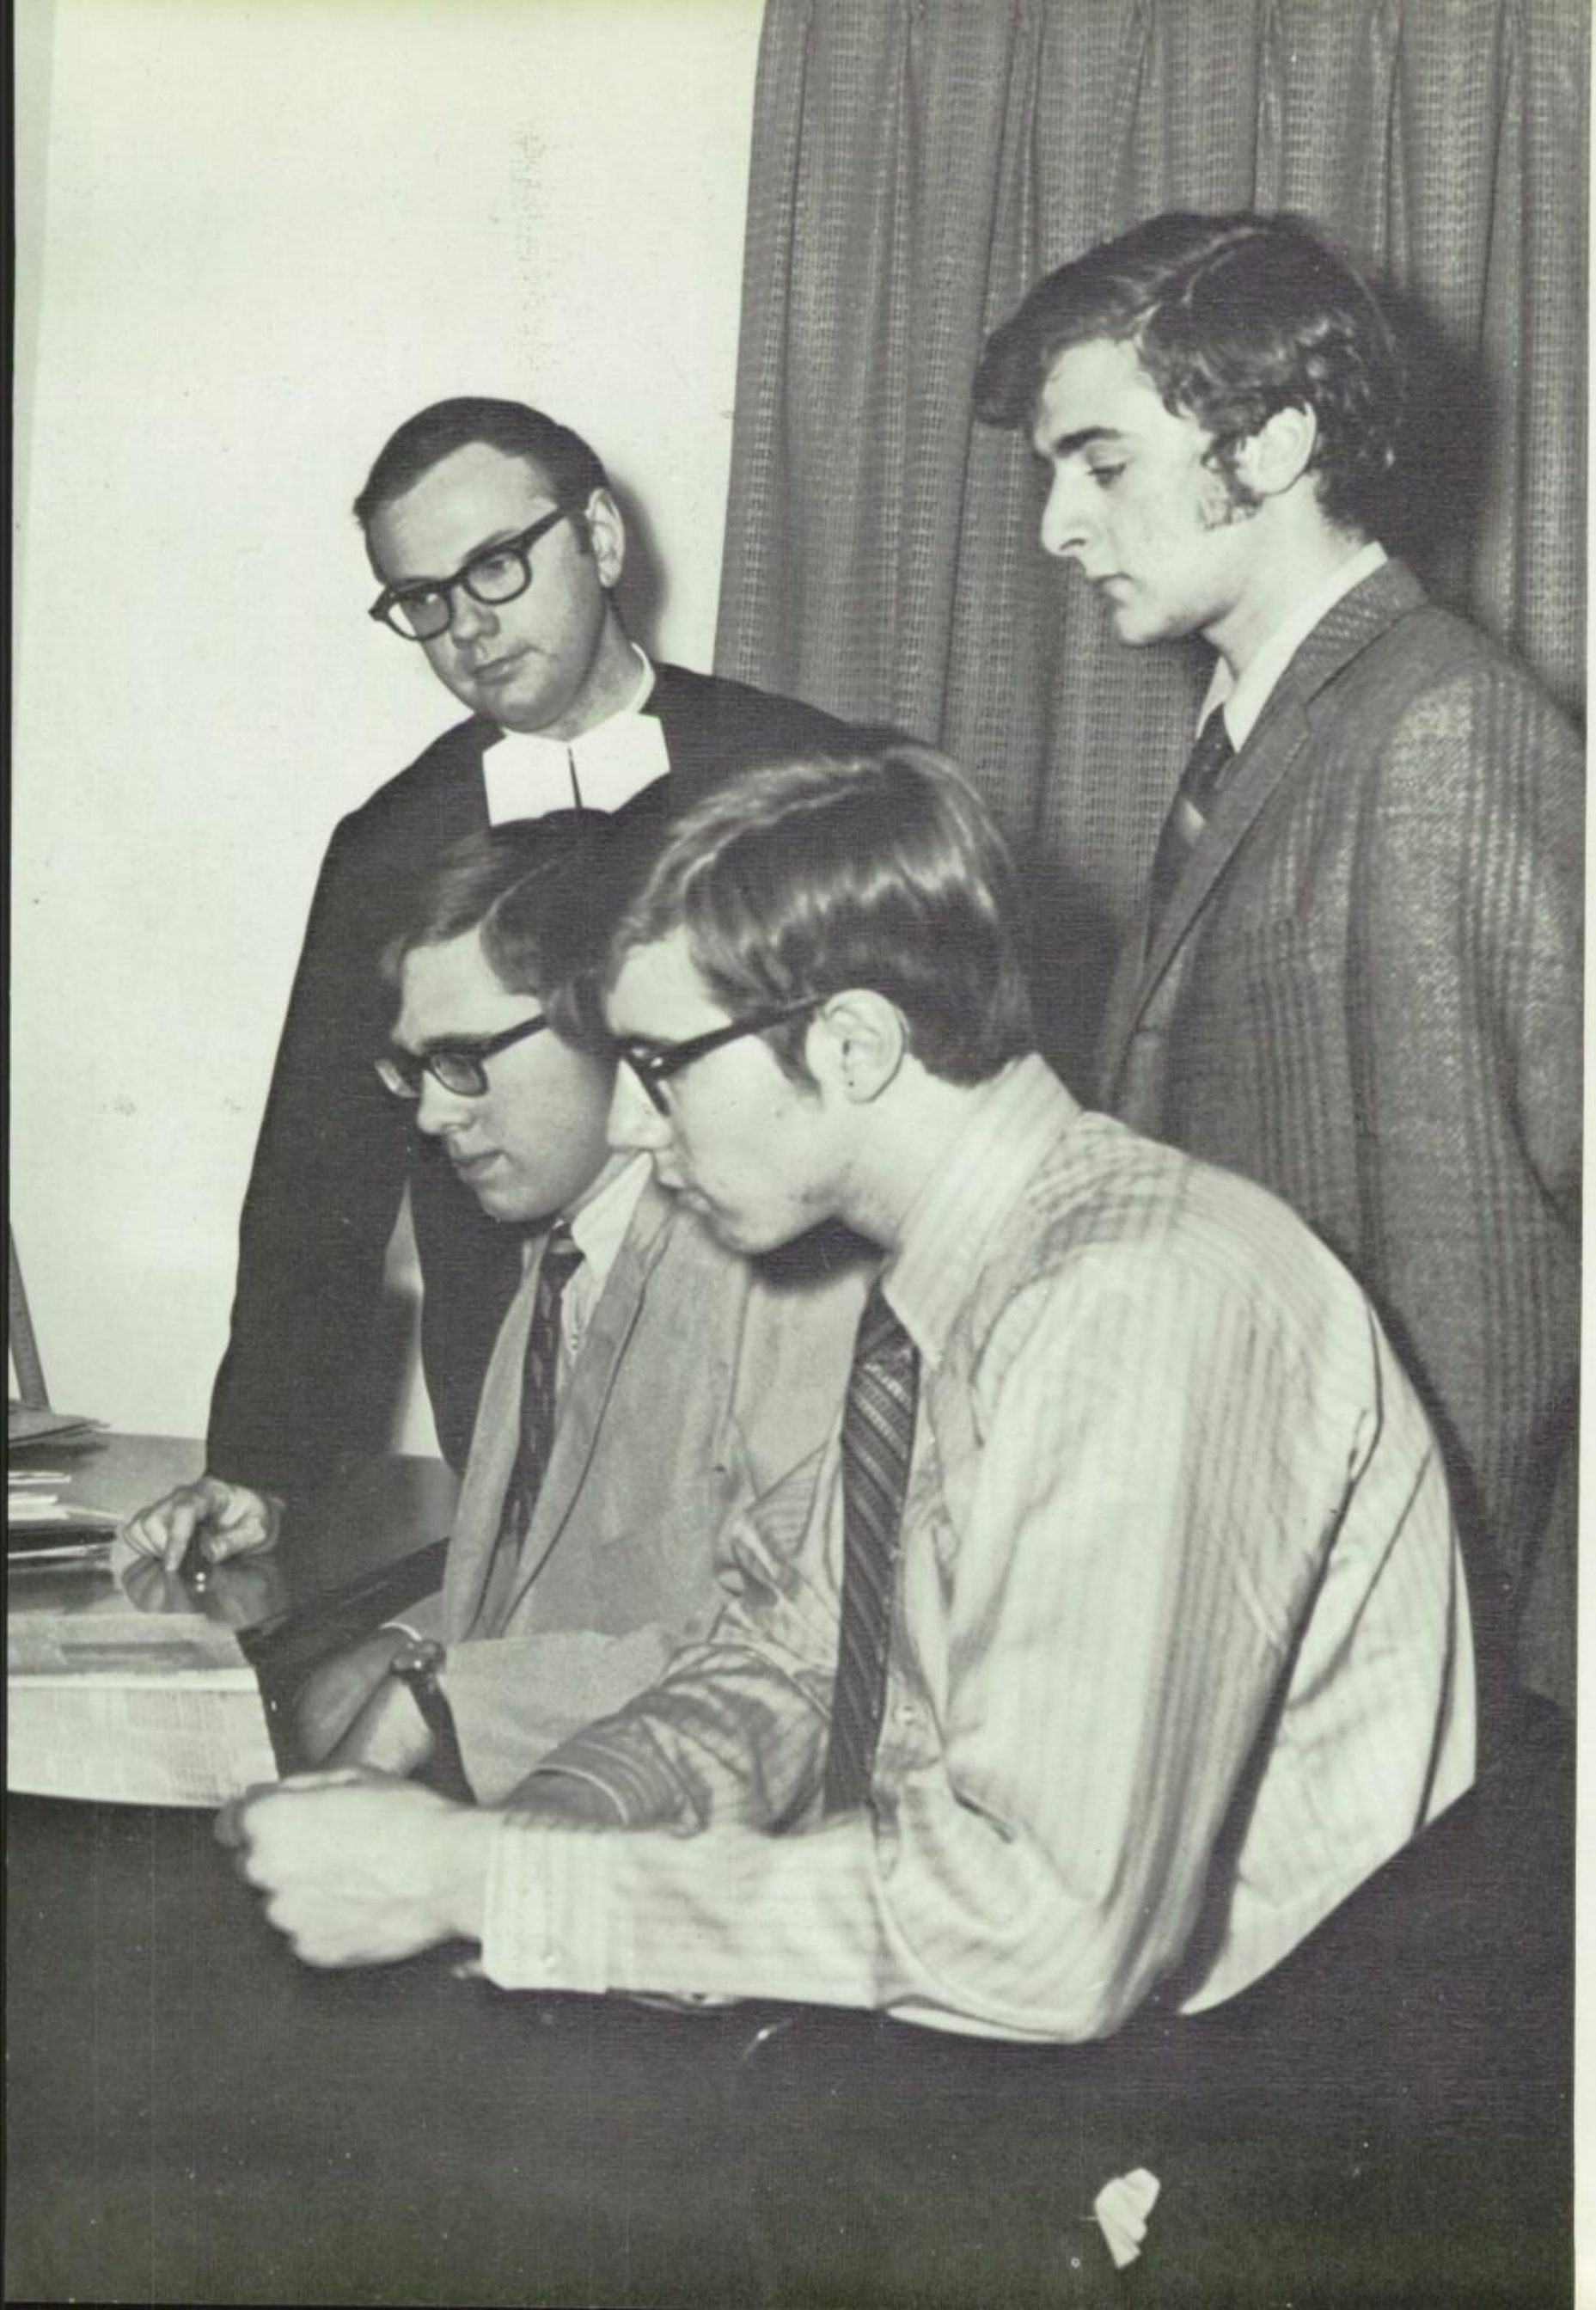
"Tell Mr. Buchwald I'm busy." After many years of moderating the Viking, Brother Benedict is used to ambitious two-bit columnists.

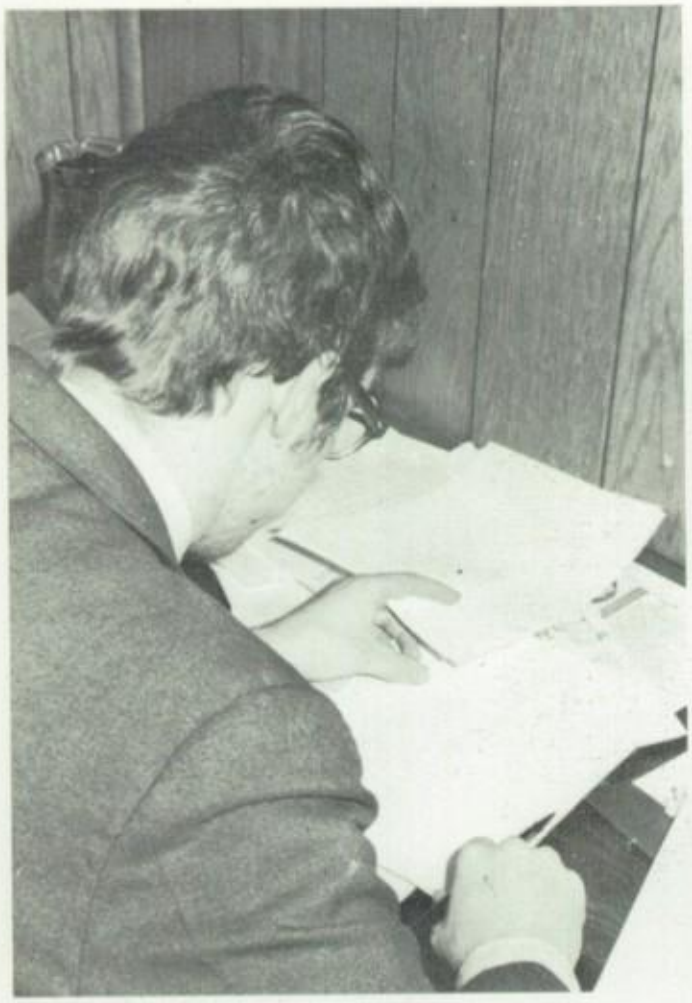


"Well, here are the facts. Ninety per cent of freshmen, from Hazelwood, who walk to school or carry their lunch, on Tuesday mornings, prefer Pepto Bismol to ginger ale with ice." Peter Hart explains the results of the Viking Poll to fellow editors Tom Horner, John Tierney, and Tom Smith.

Opposite page: Brother Benedict Oliver counsels some of the countless number of budding journalists he has helped during his many years of service as Viking moderator. ▶

"They also serve, who only stand and wait." Underclass reporters also serve as kitchen help in the plush Viking office.





Peter Hart works on another punderful humor article.

Mike Kiefer shows three other staffers his article which explores the relation between William the Conquerer and William of Mary.

Tom Smith, "Things are looking up."

TOWERS

Cover designer Dave Strathmann joins staffers Kevin McKenna and Tom Cloonan in the annual Towers Volkswagen road rally.

Moderator Mr. Ronald Borsh, flanked by business manager Pete Friday and Editor Greg Conti, looks over plans for the new 20 page Towers section.

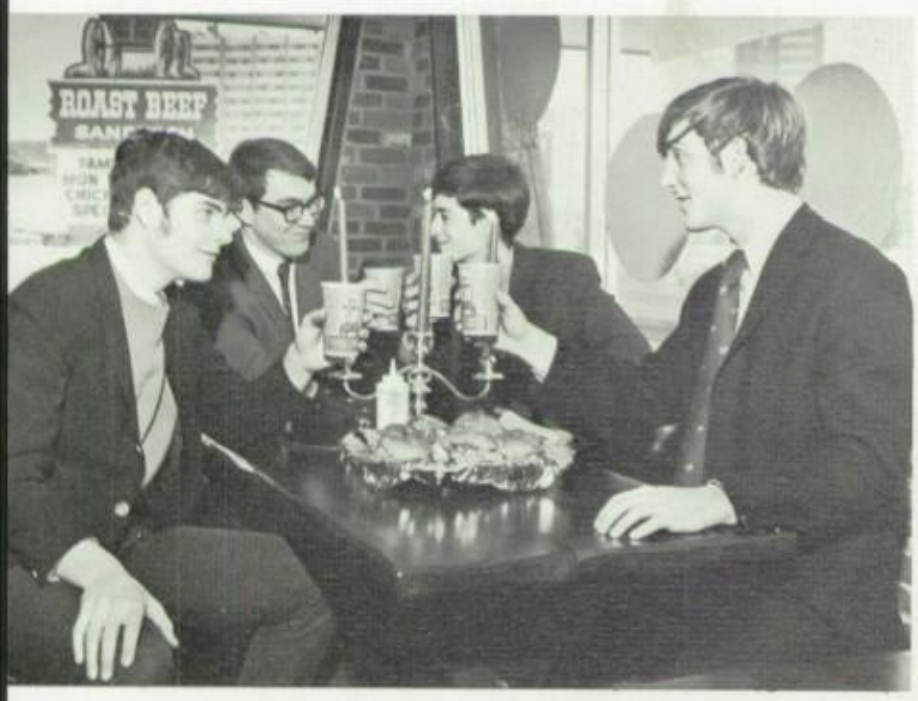
THE YEARBOOK CONVENTION

ABOVE: The disgruntled editor receives the news from his business manager. Due to lack of funds they will not be able to attend the International Yearbook Convention to be held in Stockholm, Sweden.

LEFT: Luckily, that great American hero, Roy Rogers, came through, and invited the staff to make a trip out west. Accompanied by photographer Bill Castner we began our journey.

BELOW LEFT: Tired and hungry we had almost given up when, somewhere west of Chicago, we saw this sign of hope along the roadway.

BELOW: At long last we reached our destination and Roy had really laid out the welcome mat for us.



ABOVE LEFT: We couldn't believe our eyes when we uncovered the beautiful banquet of fresh roast beef.

ABOVE: We were even more surprised when Roy's assistant for yearbook affairs, Mr. Frank Jennings, presented us with a plaque honoring the Towers as the "Yearbook That Won The West."

LEFT: With smiles on our faces and tears in our eyes we drank one last toast to Roy, Dale, and the gang, and prepared for our journey home.

BELOW: Home sweet home. With the memory of the banquet still in our hearts the trip home took no time at all and we returned to our work with a new feeling of fulfillment.

STAGE CREW

Joe Kaplor and Jim Dodson dig into the storage pile for the Jolly Green Giant's toothpick.

When the moon comes over the mountain the stage crew gets to work on the set for the next masque production.

Kevin Sweeney aids the Jeeves brothers in setting up the mike for an assembly speaker.

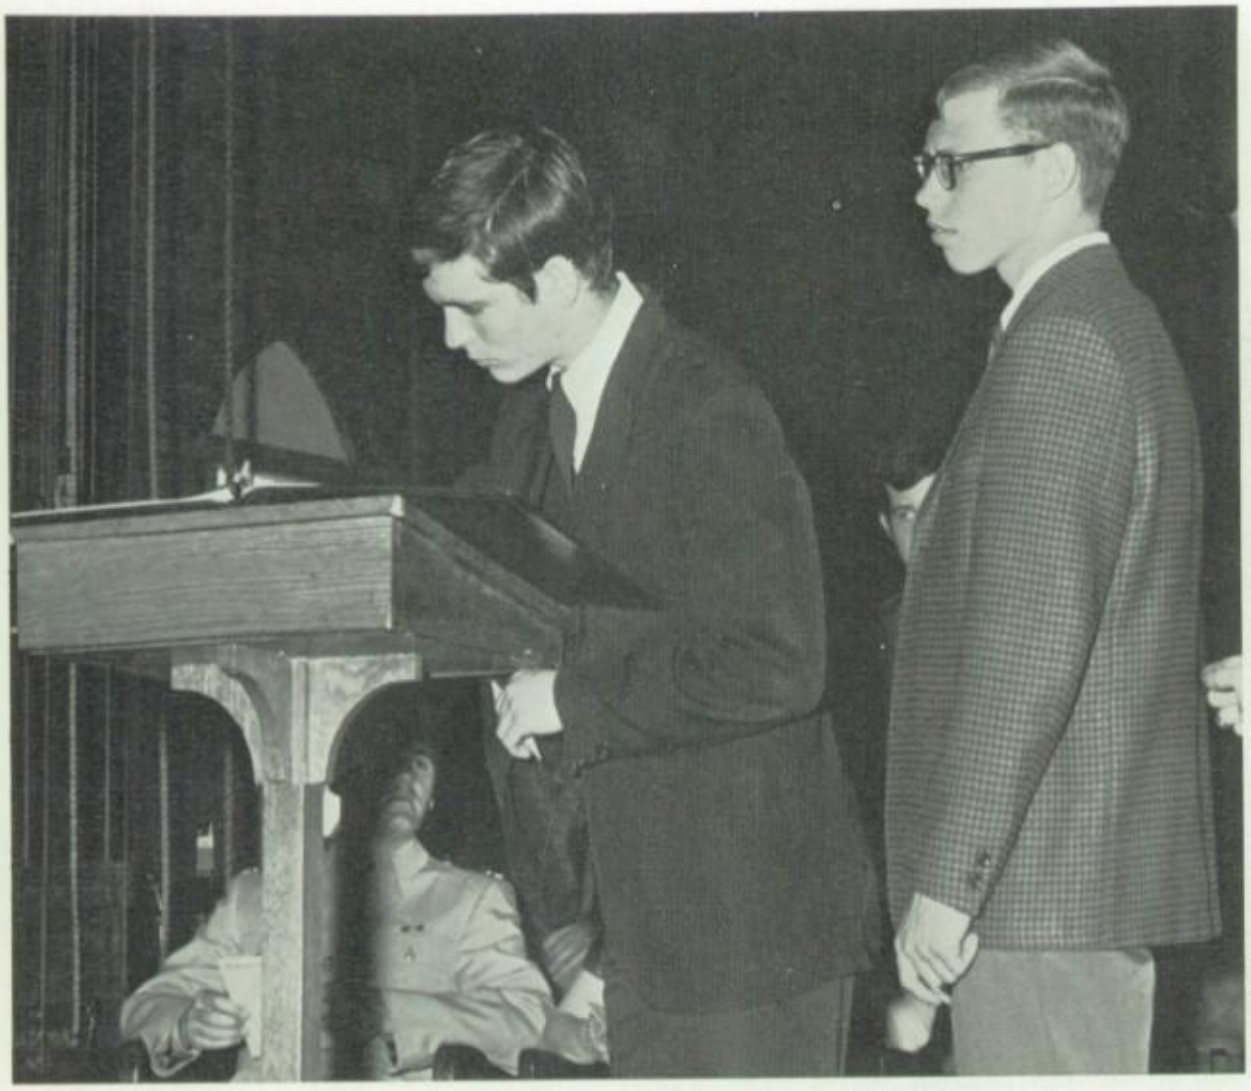
Stage manager Dave Brenenborg handles the lights for assemblies, speeches and shows.

ART CLUB

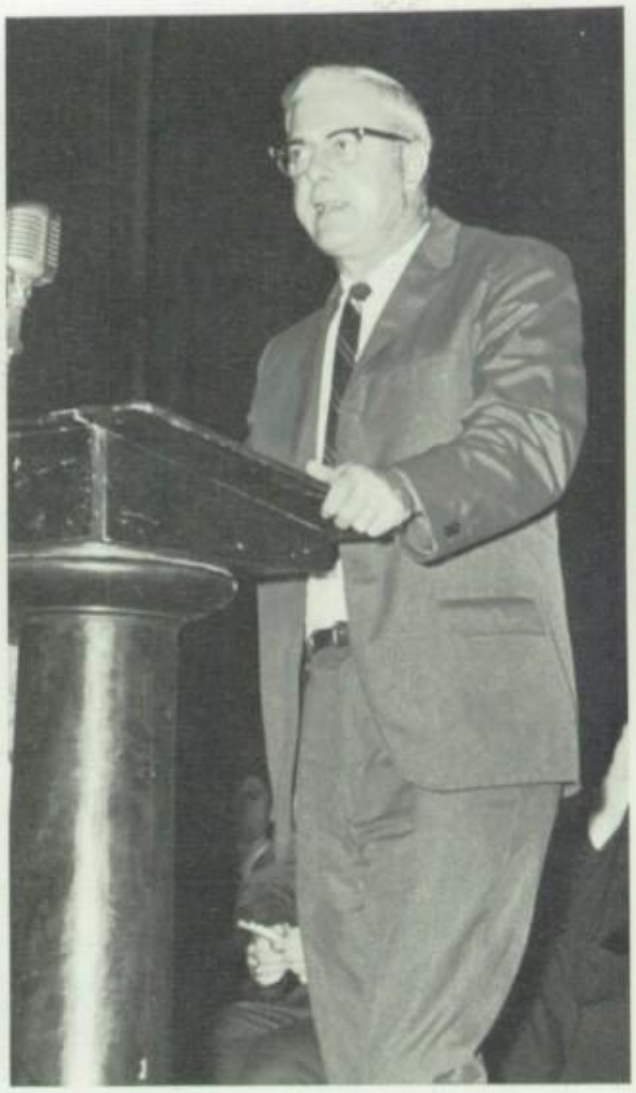
The members of the art club appraise their work.

Seniors Mike Wheeler, Den Dawson and Jim Capone get a chuckle out of their latest piece de resistance.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY



Two new members of the society, Marty Brady and Gary Cesnik, sign in.



"And when you get up tomorrow at 6:00 A.M. to come and tutor some dumb freshman, think of what an honor it is to be in the National Honor Society."

Dr. Ralph Klinefelter Ph.D., an honorary member, explains why he wasn't picked when he was in high school.

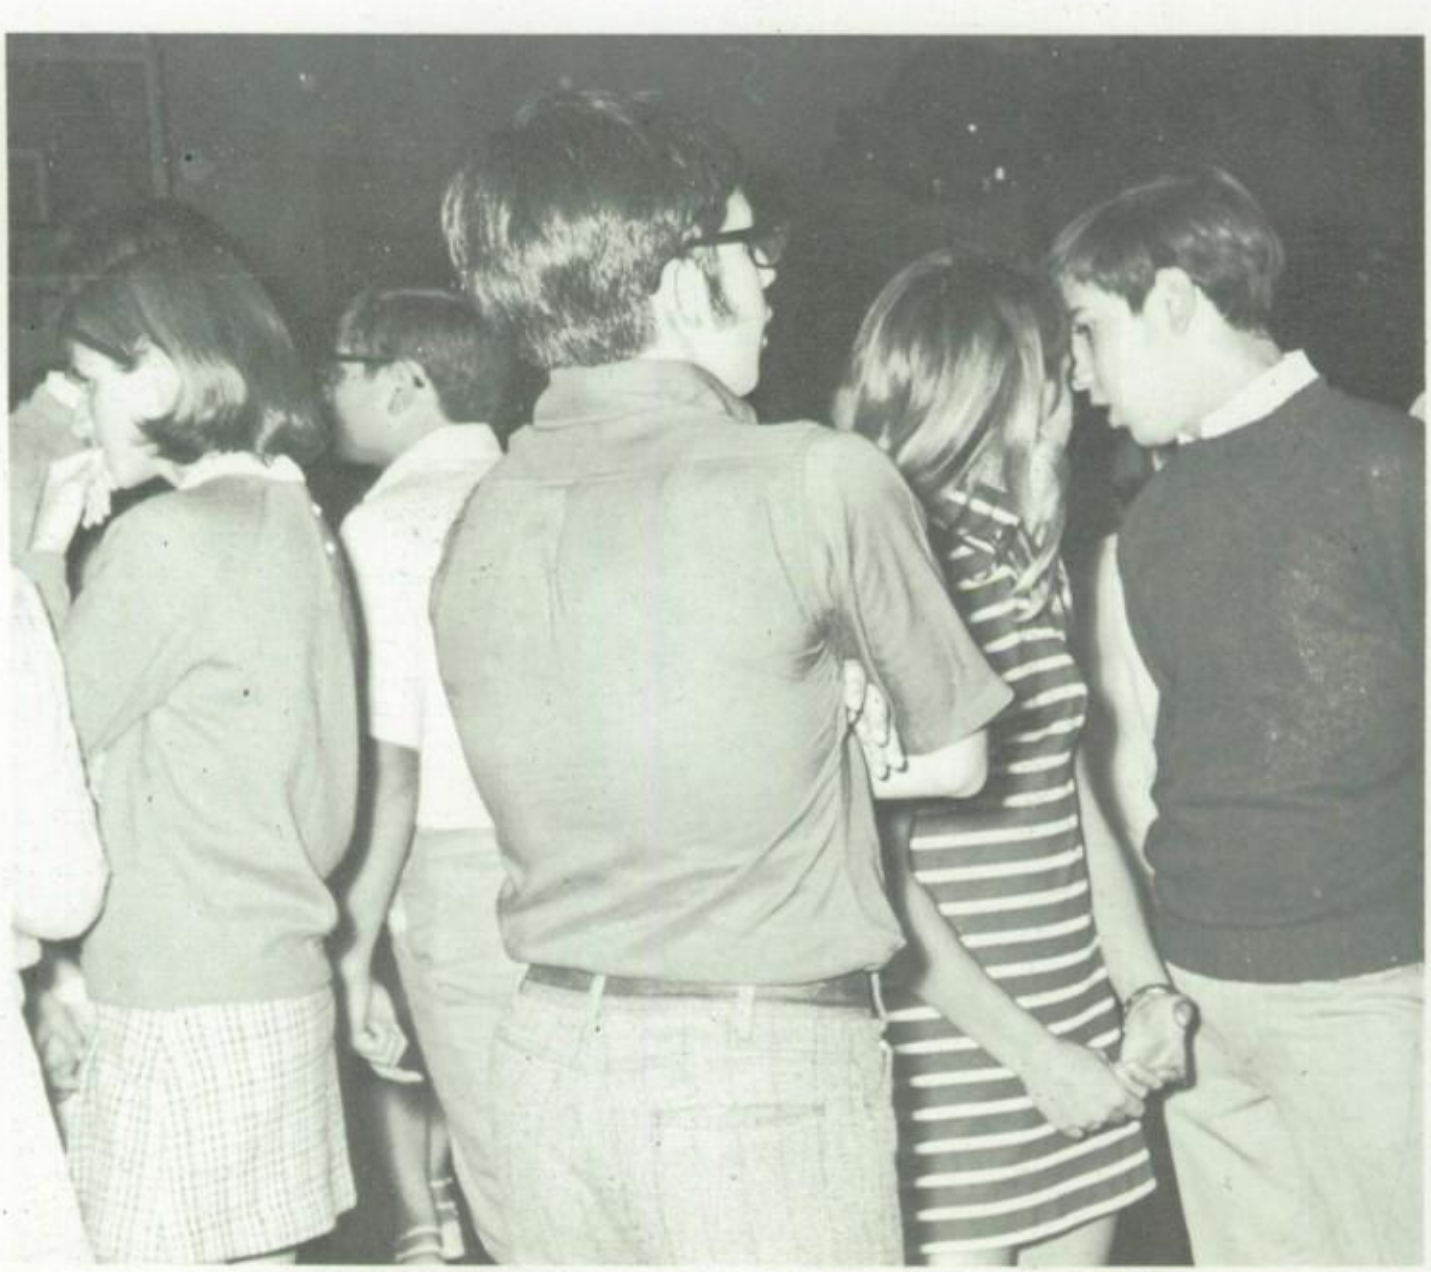
DANCES

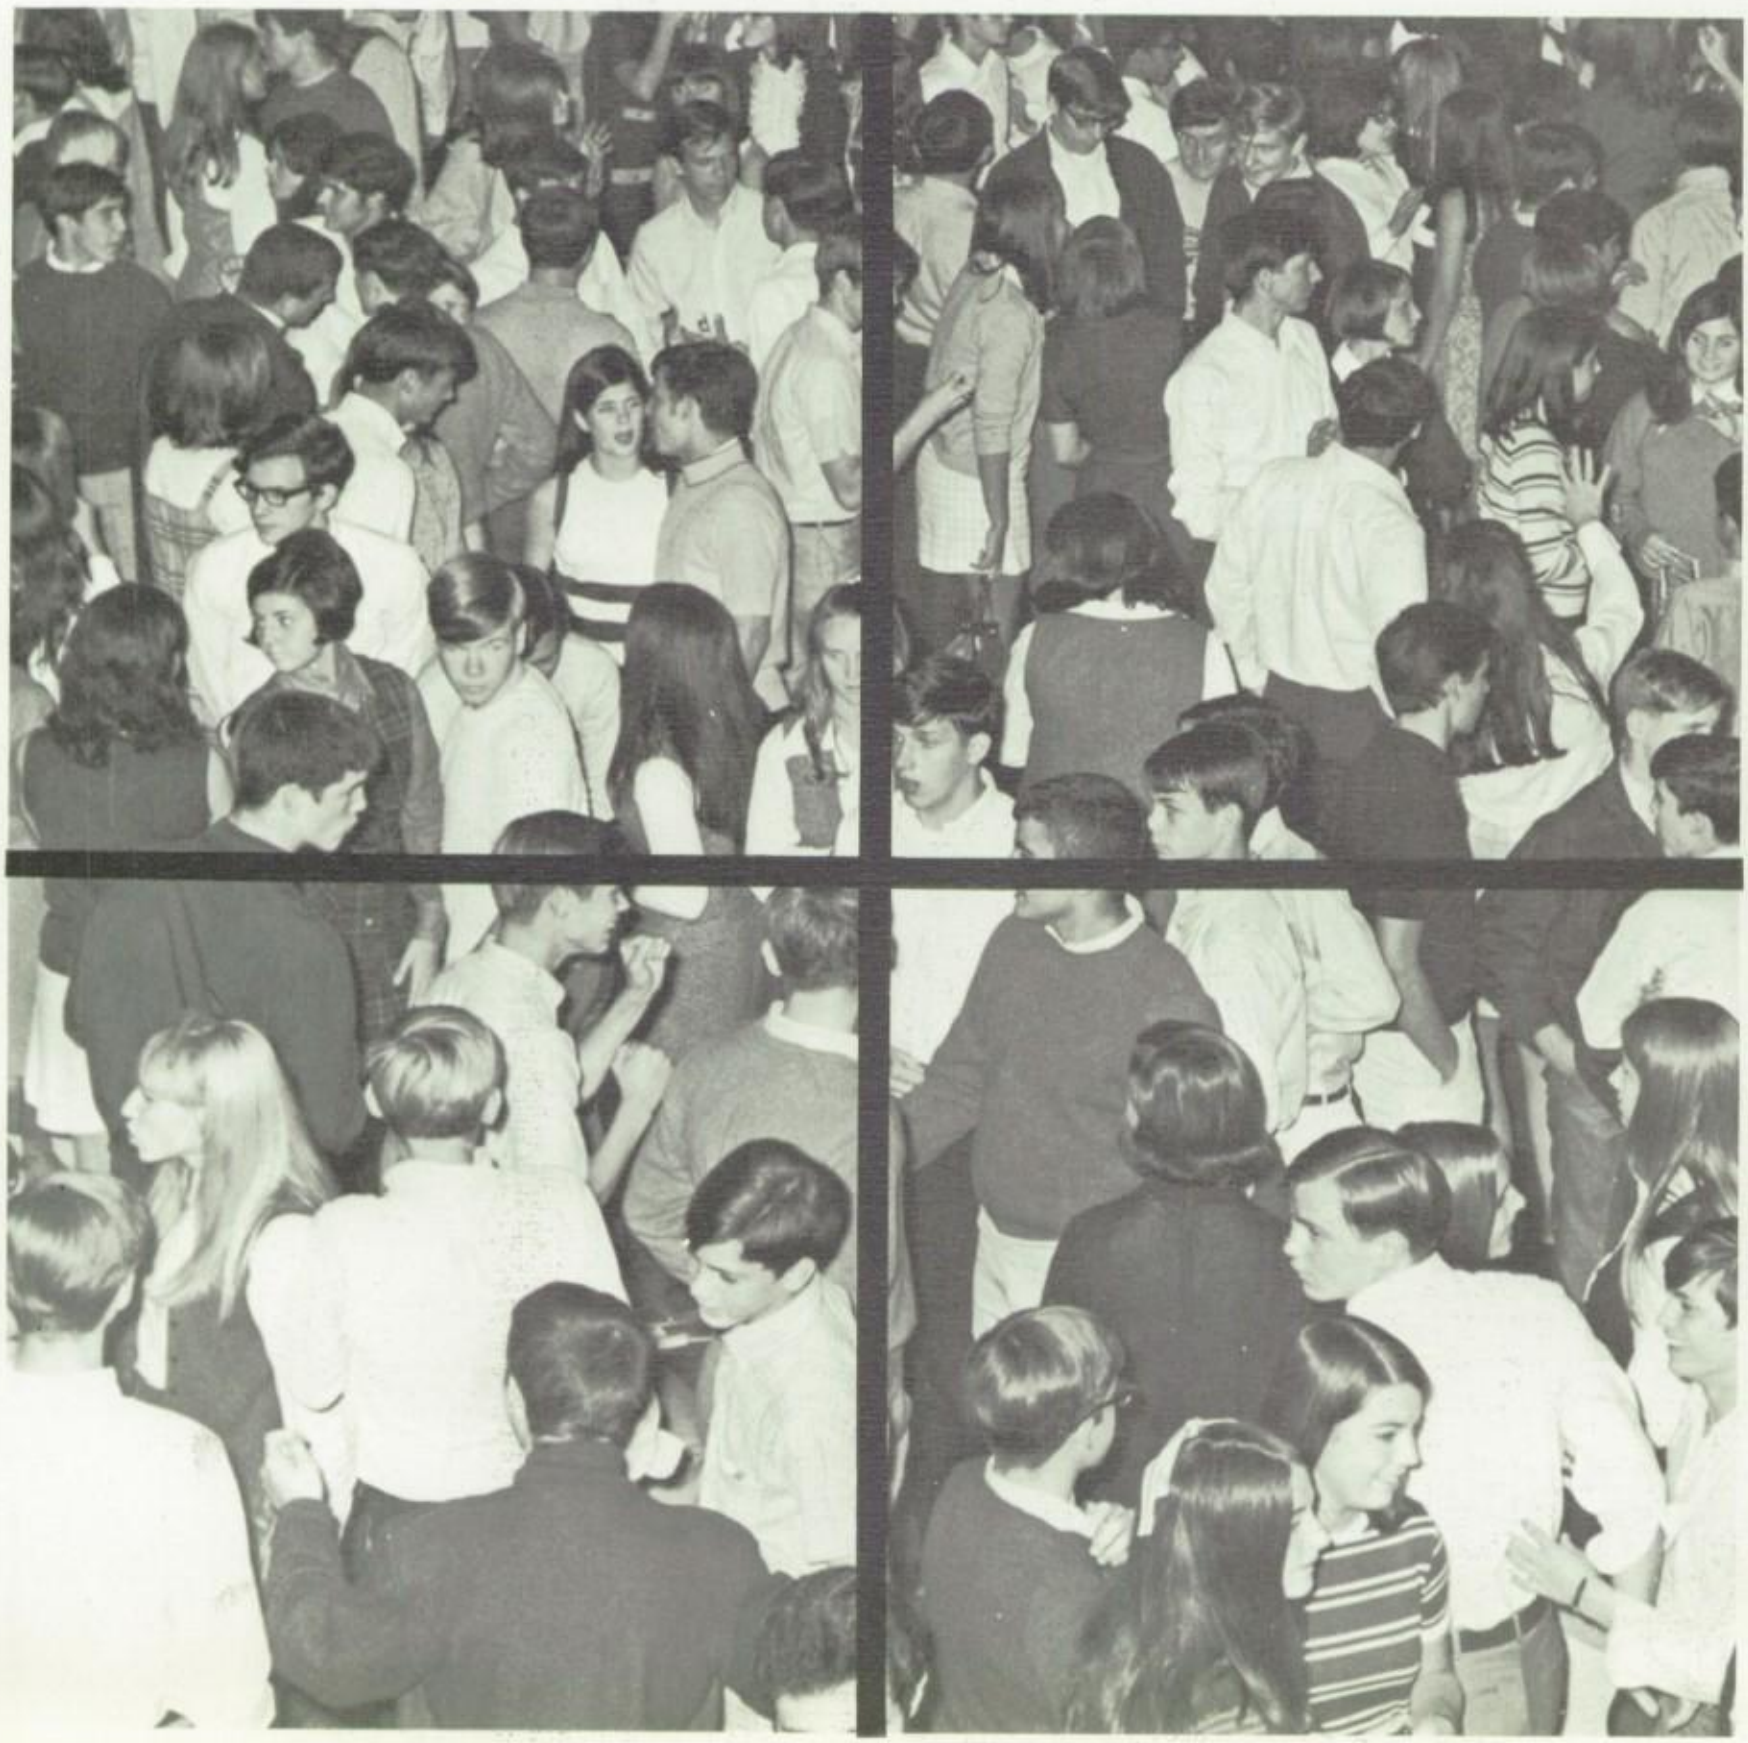
Central dances have possibly the worst reputation of any social event in Pittsburgh. Coming out of a dance the only comments you hear are, "It was too crowded", "too hot", "the group was terrible", or "nobody asked me to dance". This reputation is not a new thing, it's been around for quite a while. Every year everyone who goes resolves never to go again, but oddly enough hardly a week goes by but that at least six hundred people attend a Central dance. It is true that the dances follow pretty much the same format as they have for years but the complainers very rarely offer any new ideas and seldom accept those of the committee, (please recall the famous Sam and Dave dance). After all the complaints are heard the dances are still well attended. This is proof enough of their value and the committee should be given credit for its work.

The 1969-70 Dance Committee.

"Is that guy over there a Brother or a student?"



"Hey, haven't I seen you somewhere before?"



Brother Matt (right), a new addition to the faculty, spins some tunes at the dance.

Strange, very strange.

"Look, buddy, you want somethin' take it up with my assistant."

The crowd scurries in awe at the appearance of a good-looking girl.

"Well, I've got some great etchings at home."

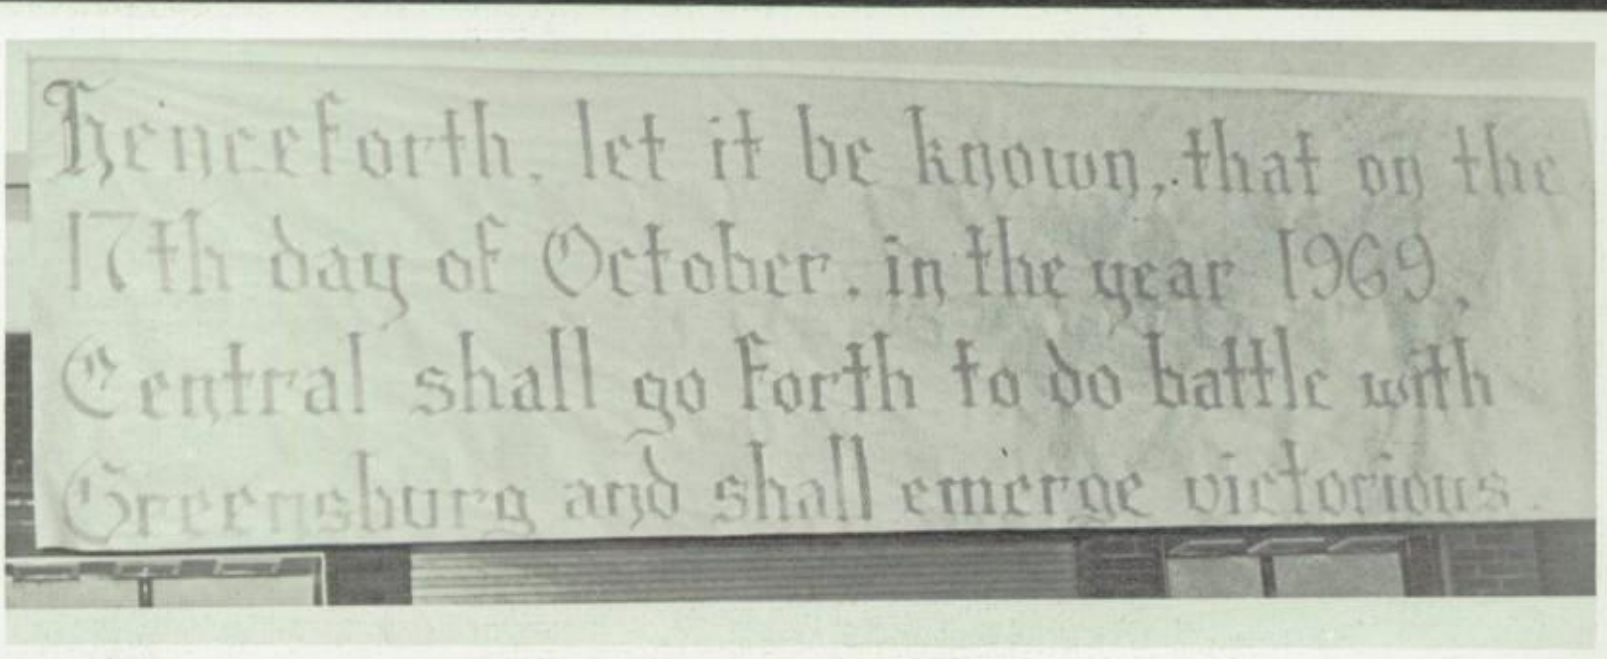
ATHLETICS

Central Catholic has a great athletic tradition. We have more varsity sports than any other school in the Catholic League and yet we also have the fewest facilities. We have varsity teams in soccer, golf, swimming, football, baseball, in addition to several others but for these we have no facilities of our own. Every day of every season the halls are filled with people running, lifting, and doing cals.

This year was not a good year for sports at Central. We failed to capture a league title in any major sport. Despite the lack of success, however, the guys were still there, running, lifting, and putting themselves out. For in sports it's not success that matters but the joy and satisfaction which is attained through participation. Some of the participants are pictured on the following pages.



Henceforth, let it be known, that on the 17th day of October, in the year 1969,
Central shall go forth to do battle with Greensburg and shall emerge victorious.

Everything pointed to a league title this year in football. The team had won the title as freshmen and j.v.'s and several players had had varsity experience as juniors. After finishing 2-1 on a tough exhibition schedule the team prepped for the big game against Canevin. They outplayed the Crusaders but missed three opportunities inside the ten yard line and lost 13-0. After this their moral dropped to an all time low and the team lost the next game to McCort and the annual grudge game against North. As it turned out Canevin lost too and had the team stayed tough they could have shared the title. A 4-4 season was disappointing to say the least.

OPPOSITE RIGHT: Checcio hands to Warren to begin a power sweep.

BASKETBALL

The 1969-70 version of the varsity basketball team had a poor season. Like the football team the hoopsters began the season with what looked like good material. The senior's have won the championship as freshmen and J.V.'s and several of them had seen action last season. The upperclassmen were joined by sophomore sensation Rip Warren. He and Bernie Pucka provided shooting while Checcio, Paieski and Seneca specialized in passing and defense. The team also had depth with senior's Peter Hart and Phil Morelli and junior's Pat Brannigan and Joe Costanzo.

Despite all of these good points the team made the worst showing of the last several years. They seemed to lack a belief in themselves. Student support was good in the early part of the season and the team got "up" for the games but an atmosphere of uncertainty prevailed. They suffered from what has come to be called "Centralitis". They choked in the pressure situations. For some reason the team was not convinced by the coach or themselves that they could do the job.

This year's cross country team began the season with adversity and never seemed to escape it. All of last year's starting runners were lost through graduation and Brother Fred deGroot, the unbelievably successful coach of the last seven seasons stepped down to make way for a new coach, the capable but inexperienced Mr. McKoy. The harriers worked hard through the summer and fall and after an early season loss to Mt. Lebanon gained a respectable record. The team was ready to defend its title in the Catholic League championships when Mike Sherry, the number one runner, pulled a tendon in his leg and was unable to run. The team finished a respectable but disappointing second in the league and fourth in the state.

SOCCER

The 1969 soccer team had a disappointing year. The season opened with a game against South Allegheny, last year's state champs. The team played well but lost 1-0, and then they lost five of the next seven games. This early poor showing made a winning season impossible. The team did come back however, to win four of their last five games for a record of 5-8-2. Captains Bill Slemenda, Gary Johnson, and Alex Sciulli, all played well and they were joined in their good performances by Chris Bowman, and the Willem twins. The team and coaches should be given credit for their effort and spirit. Perhaps their record would have been better if they had had more support from the student body.

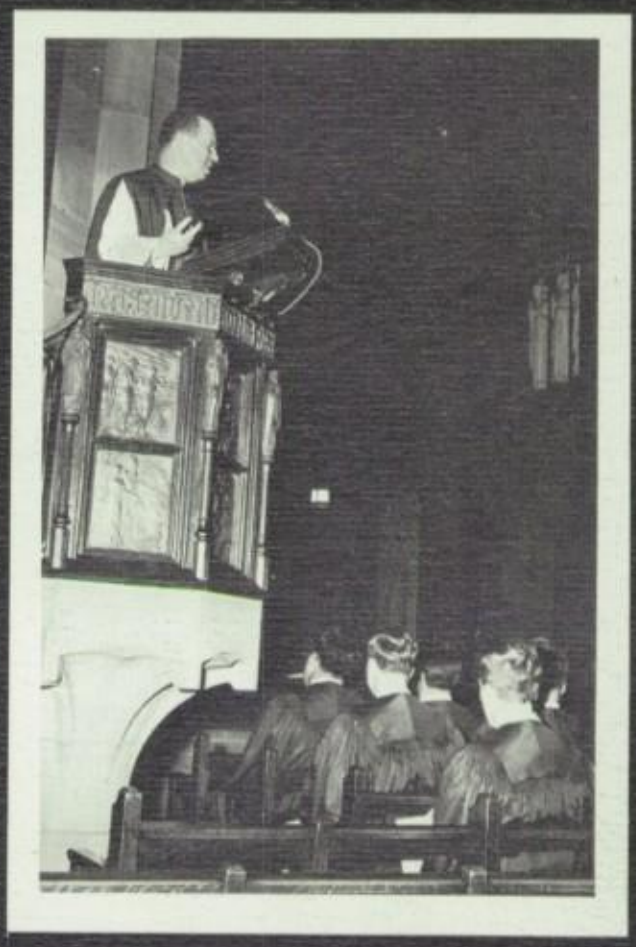
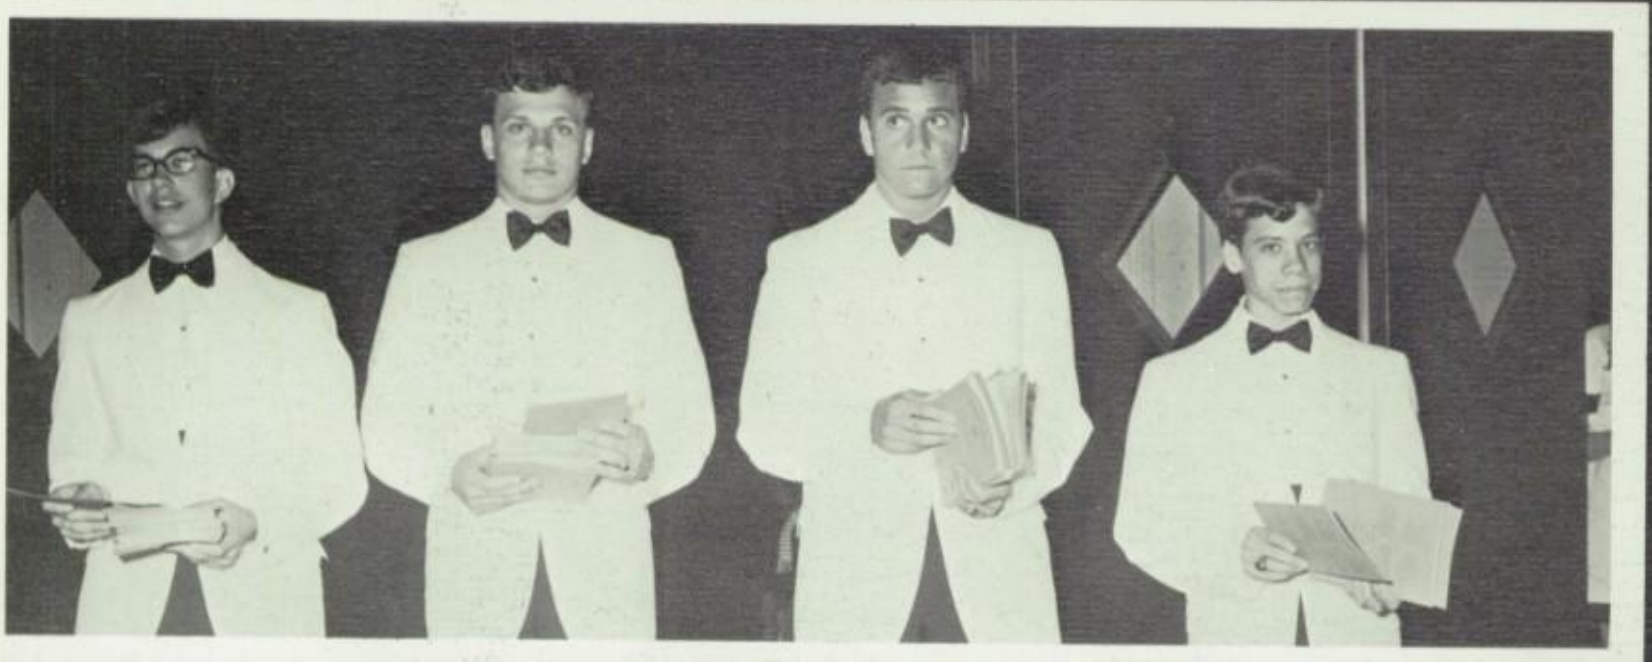
SENIORS

Every high school student longs to be a senior. Indeed it is a position which carries with it many opportunities: the captainship of a varsity team, the lead in the play, or perhaps most basic, more assemblies. One of the singular advantages of being a senior is that unlike most sought-after titles it is just about all that it's cranked up to be. When you're a senior you and the adults on the faculty realize that soon you too will be an adult and you are given the freedom and responsibility you deserve. And what's more, it's fun. School teams, activities, and social events are no longer Central's but yours. You organized them, worked on them, and you reap the benefit from them. Perhaps the worst thing about being a senior is that it ends. Of course some of us will be glad to leave but those of us who participated fully in the Central community will not be anxious to face the responsibilities of the future. We will feel as if we are leaving behind part of ourselves rather than an institution.





SENIORS

Four years of seasons and seasons to come . . .

Time Captured is Action—

Minutes are frames of energy, exploding in motion—

Happiness is victory . . . . .

If, for any reason, you have to find BERNIE BERNACKI, you may be in for a rough time. First try the Student Council office. Being Secretary of The Student Council, he is likely to be there. If not, try the Spirit, Dance, or Intramural Committee meetings because Bern is an active member of all these committees. If he isn't at an of these, see if there is a National Honor Society meeting. If there is, he will most likely be there. As President of the Society he presides over all the meetings.

When you finally find Bernie, you will find one of the most outstanding persons at Central. His warmth, friendliness, willingness to help and his involvement in Central activities are ample qualifications to make him a Senior Standout. Add to this his outstanding academic average and you have one of the most colorful students at Central.

Without Bernie's presence at Central for the last four years, the school would be missing a vital link in its continuing chain of growth which would, indeed, be difficult to replace.

Simply by being a Senior Standout, BILL CASTNER makes these words unnecessary. There is not one person at Central Catholic who is unaware of Bill's remarkable accomplishments. In fact, not being one to confine himself, Bill has even gained national recognition for his achievements.

The accomplishments which I have mentioned are those gained by Bill in his efforts to obtain excellence in communication. During his four years at Central Catholic, Bill has been perhaps one of the most successful debaters in the history of the Central Catholic Forensic Society. For three of those years, Bill has occupied a position on the varsity team. He can display an impressive number of trophies which he has earned for his excellent performances in many city, state, and national tournaments. Bill's contribution to the Forensic Society does not end merely with his participation in debate. He has also served as Executive Secretary and Novice Master.

Bill has given much more to Central Catholic as a debater, as an honor student, and even as a part-time photographer, than can be described in a few, or even many words.

When one comes to talking about athletics at Central, this year a particular name will come up quite frequently. A dynamic personality, great ability, and a burning desire have made this name, AL CHECCIO, known to everyone who is connected with Central.

When an athlete of a major sport at Central is elected captain of the team he has a right to be proud because his ability to produce has not only been recognized but also he has gained the respect of his fellow teammates. This year Al Checcio was elected captain of both the football and basketball teams at Central; a position he did not ask for but was placed in by his teammates. This great respect Al receives is not due to what he says but to what he does which can be summed up as the product of many long hours of pure "sweat".

For those who know Al Checcio personally it is not his achievements or his great ability which earn him their friendship but his magnetic personality. This quality has made the halls and classrooms of Central a lot brighter and warmer and have added immensely to the reputation of the Central athelete.

In his four years at Central Al Checcio has compiled an amazing record of leadership in the many fields in which he has participated and has become the proud product of a proud school. The only people who will be glad to see Al graduate this year will be the coaches of other schools whom he has terrorized for the past four years. Al Checcio will leave Central but his example of spirit and determination will remain in the halls of the school for years to come.

If one were to follow J. GREGORY CONTI around school for awhile, two qualities would make a lasting impression—endless energy and a thousand nicknames.

It is "Greg", as the school Yearbook editor, who misses the deadlines, picks the pictures, and writes the funny (?) captions. As a member of the National Honor Society, "Greg" has rescued many victims of English by his careful tutoring.

As Mister DePinna, Hines, or Hilliard, this standout has delighted Central Masque audiences with his portrayal of drunks, an inefficient efficiency expert, an unsuccessful fireworks maker, and a worried father.

Using his legal name of John G. Conti this standout can be found at the top of the honor roll. His consistently fine academic record includes difficult Advanced Placement courses in History and English.

However, the most important nickname of this standout is "Kiter". Whether knee-deep in mud to form a Spirit Committee pyramid, or conducting illegal Christmas Carol practice during senior lunch, "Kiter" has proven himself a sincerely real person to all he has met—no matter the nickname. It is truly this, not all his activities, that makes him a Senior Standout.

PETE FRIDAY is one of Central's finest examples of the well-rounded person. His intelligence and genuineness typify his congeniality as well as his joviality and optimism.

Being "up" on the action does not quite convey Pete's awareness—being "in" on the action does. Participation in athletics and in the TOWERS publication serves as an expression of his talent and sense of responsibility. Functioning as business manager for the TOWERS, Pete has shown the effectiveness of organization and imagination. Pete furthers his involvement in Central activities in his role of photographer for the TOWERS, class president for four years, and as a member of two committees.

Although he possesses a respectable average, Peter's academic achievement is better described as an attitude rather than a numerical measurement. This attitude is evidenced in the Chemistry or Biology lab on Sunday afternoon or in the library after school. Enumerating Pete's destinctive qualities does him insufficient justice unless these qualities are associated with his charactertistic drive and determination.

In short, Peter Friday is a Senior Standout not only because of his personal accomplishments, but also because of the dynamic personality which typifies the well-rounded person.

A person concerned, a person fulfilled—such is JOE MEROLA. During his four years at Central, he has stood out academically and in extra-curricular activities as well. To just hear of what Joe has done is not enough to appreciate even a little part of his personality. You have to know him. You have to work with him.

He has proven himself deserving in the academic field by ranking at the top in this year's graduating class, and by being on the Executive Committee of the National Honor Society. He is also a member of the Math Honor Society.

And as if that wasn't enough, Central takes pride in saying that Joe is one of the nations top debaters. In being elected Vice-President of the Central Catholic Forensic Society, his good spirit and healthy outlook on life provides an excellent example for the rest of our society. A person concerned, a person fulfilled, a Senior Standout—such is Joe Merola.

"Talkers are not doers."

—William Shakespeare

One of the most amazing qualities of KENNY PAIESKI is his ability to perform at his best without telling you about it afterward. He takes all of his awards in stride, and in his two year varsity career, he has accumulated quite a few of them. Selected for the Big 33 football team, and named to the all-state third team and first team all-Catholic, Kenny has been a standout on the gridiron for two years.

But despite his 6'2", 210 frame, Kenny has been a starter for the basketball team for two years, too. Here he has also been outstanding, usually assigned the job of watching the opponent's top scorer, while getting more than his share of rebounds.

Although he sometimes jokingly says, "I'm a team ballplayer," there are really no better ways to describe him. Hustle, school pride, and the determination to win have marked Kenny's performances in both football and basketball in the past four years and are sure to be a part of his college career, when he finally chooses his college from among many offers.

Kenny Paieski is a doer, but you'd have to ask his friends about that.

Upon examination of his activities, JIM SCHEUERMANN is undoubtedly well-qualified to be a Senior Standout. Jim has participated in the school Orchestra and the school band since his freshman year. His varied musical talents made him well-suited for the position of drum major of the marching band. Jim is also active in many other school activities. He has membership positions on the Spirit and Dance Committees. He was also elected president of his senior homeroom class.

However, Jim's main qualification for the position of Senior Standout is his awareness of the needs of other people. Jim was one of the first volunteers to teach and coach at the St. Agnes Church poverty program center in Lower Oakland. Jim was also elected co-chairman of he Christmas in Appalachia drive, in which his guidance and leadership abilities made the drive exceed the desired goal. His election to the National Honor Society not only shows his intellectual achievement but also his ability to serve others, especially in the tutoring program. His awareness of the needs of others makes him stand apart from most of his fellow seniors. It is this quality that makes Jim exceptionally qualified to be a senior standout.

Although he is President of this year's Forensic Society and is one of the best Original Orators in the country, RALPH SCIULLO is not a conceited person. He is known for his humility and leadership. Whether it be listening to a group of underclassmen or running a tournament, Ralph is always at the center of things. To say he possesses the quality of leadership is foolish. He possesses an attitude which compels him to lead.

As a member of the rare group of individuals whose interest lies in their fellow men, Ralph is constantly making friends throughout the country. He lives this interest at home through his tutoring and coaching at the St. Agnes School poverty program. At school, he is always willing to help his fellow classmates.

He combines this leadership and sensitivity into an impatience for change. To know Ralph is to like him and, of course, this makes him a Senior Standout.

Throughout its history, Central Catholic has developed an outstanding tradition, not only for having winning teams, but also teams with the desire to win. Tradition is a characteristic or trait which only can be obtained through hard work, determination, and pride. PAUL SENECA is an outstanding example of this great Central tradition. Despite lack of "size" which usually separates good athletes from great ones, Paul has accomplished more at Central than other boys twice his size. Whether he is on the basketball floor, the baseball diamond, or the football field, the name Seneca has become one of the most respected in the area. In his four years at Central, he has given many opposing coaches grey hairs. These tremendous accomplishments are the results of much hard work, determination, but above all pride. Pride is a motivating force; so inspiring that it has made Paul Seneca one of the finest athletes in Central's history. What even makes Paul more phenominal is his high degree of academic excellence. Second best in anything just couldn't be good enough. Truly this tiny titan fully deserves the title of Senior Standout.

When one begins to write a Senior Standout write-up one doesn't know just where to begin. To get a better idea of what to do I looked back through some recent yearbooks. While paging through them I noticed something. The subject of this article, BILL SLEMENDA, was given almost full coverage in all of the soccer sections. He has been "Mr. Soccer" at Central Catholic for the last three years. In his junior year he was named the most-valuable player. This year he was co-captain and the real leader of the team. He got them ready for games by constantly driving them on the practice field and convincing them of the importance of every contest. And HE was the clutch man. When the team needed a goal they looked to Bill Slemenda.

Another thing I realized is that you would never know all of these things by talking or knowing Bill. You have to hear about them from someone else. Bill knows that he has accomplished a great deal. That he is the best soccer player Central has ever had and also that he performs very well academically. Well enough to be in the National Honor Society. He knows all of this and yet he does not broadcast it. This is what makes Bill Slemenda the man that he is.

This year Mr. Charles Beggy celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday and decided to leave his job here at Central which he had held for some thirty years. On January 5, the school had an assembly to thank Mr. Beggy for his many years of service. Above are some scenes from that assembly.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Publishing a 256 page book is a big undertaking. Of course those of us on the yearbook staff take pride in this but we also know we could never have done it without the aid and encouragement of a great many people. Because of this we take this opportunity to express our gratitude to the following people.

To Mr. Ronald Borsh, our moderator. Mr. Borsh, last time we checked, we were $2,000 in the red. Good luck.

To Mr. Ed Ursprung, our representative from Cooke Publishing Company. Mr. Ursprung, Mr. Borsh will be glad to answer any questions you have concerning our financial situation.

To Hill's Studio and their talented photographers, big Gus and his sidekick Bill. The high quality of their work can be seen on the pages of this book.

To the students and faculty of Central Catholic who kindly consented to stand still long enough to be photographed. To those of you who didn't, tough luck.

Lastly, and most especially to Mr. Charles Beggy. To Charlie, we owe our new office, and many desperately needed fish sandwiches and french fries, as well as his unique encouragement. A Central without Mr. Beggy will be truly unimaginable.
